Only 15 Seats Lost

Ontario Tories Gain Landslide Election Win

TORONTO (BUP)—In the most spectacular election victory ever scored in Ontario, Premier Leslie Frost and his Progressive Conservative administration have captured 83 of the 98 seats at stake.

The overwhelming mandate given the premier at the polls out-stripped the smashing victory he scored in 1951 when Progressive Conservatives gained 79 of the 90 seats at stake.

The Liberal party, led by Farquhar Oliver, gained four seats from the Conservatives, but failed to capture any of the eight new constituencies. The results return Oliver as opposition leader with nine men behind him.

Youthful Donald C. MacDonald, who became CCF party leader only 18 months ago, gained a personal victory in his first bid for election, but his followers managed to be elected in only three ridings.

James Dempsey, the controversial Independent Conservative from the Ottawa valley, carried Renfrew South, and Albert Wren, a Liberal-Labor candidate seeking re-election in Kenora, maintained a slight lead when voting there ended for the night with the outcome still much in doubt.

Mr. Frost lost five seats, but swept seven of the eight new constituencies. He gained the Toronto riding of St. Andrew where Allan Grossman defeated Communist Joseph Salsberg.

Nine women sought election to the province's 5th government and all of them were defeated.

Premier Frost, and all but one member of his large cabinet, were returned with comfortable margins. The lone executive-level defeat was suffered by W. E. Hamilton, Minister Without Portfolio, who was unseated in Wellington South by Mayor Harry Worton of Guelph, a liberal.

From his Lindsay home, the Premier described the election results as "a great endorsation" of his party and its platform of "good government" for Ontario.

Due to Wildcat Strikes

Parts Shortages Close GM Plants

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors corporation said Thursday it will close 20 plants today because of parts shortages from wildcat union strikes protesting delay in GM contract negotiations here. The closings will affect 60,000 workers.

GM's announcement was made as talks with the United Auto Workers (CIO) continued on a hopeful note that an agreement could be worked out to beat a Sunday midnight strike deadline.

GM was reported preparing to hand UAW president Walter Reuther an offer patterned after Monday's Ford settlement, but both sides maintained a strict silence.

The wildcat strikes erupted earlier this week in a half-dozen GM plants as the UAW extended its contract from Tuesday to Sunday midnight. Strikers were reported confused about the postponement and trigger-happy for a walkout because of slow progress in the Detroit bargaining.

SETTLEMENT FORESEEN

It was indicated, however, that GM's delay in making an offer was primarily due to preparing its position in the light of the Ford agreement, which provides a modified guaranteed wage, plus pay increases, pensions, and other concessions.

GM estimated it will lose production of 20,000 cars and trucks this week.

Thousands Sent Home By Chrysler

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The second major work stoppage in three days at the Chrysler Corporation of Canada Thursday resulted in 2,200 men in the passenger car plant being sent home.

Company officials could give no reason for the stoppage, and union officials were not immediately available for comment.

They said, however, they expected the regular shifts would return to work today.

City Allots $3,100 for Art Gallery But Refuses Grant To Help Symphony

Cool, Clear, Refreshing

$22,250 Donated

City council yesterday rejected a motion to give the Community Chest $15,000 to allocate to charitable organizations, gave the Victoria Symphony Orchestra nothing, and set aside $3,100 to give the Art Gallery if it can legally do so.

Before it began considering grants, council heard a letter from the Art Gallery saying it had received an offer of a collection of art of considerable value and an endowment of $100,000.

CONDITION

But a condition of the offer was the future security of the gallery from sale for unpaid taxes. The centre asked for a grant as some assurance of security.

Council endorsed and agreed to send to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities a resolution submitted by Ald. Robert Macmillan, suggesting that because of its educational role, an arts centre should be supported by the provincial government as well as municipalities, preferably on an 80-20 basis.

Ald. J. D. Smith was assured by Alderman Macmillan that this was not an attempt to "pass the buck for another year, or two or three or four years," because this year's grant would be considered later in the meeting.

As council, in committee of the whole, moved on to consider individual grants, Alderman Macmillan reminded council that last year notice had been given to all charities that in future years they would receive grants only through the Community Chest.

He also noted that the people of Victoria had voted for charitable grants—not other grants—a sum not exceeding $25,000.

ALL TO CHEST?

"For argument's sake," he said, "the whole $25,000 should go to the Community Chest."

Mayor Claude L. Harrison agreed that this was the truth and might well be digested by aldermen, but Alderman Smith said no could council could bind another.

The mayor said he didn't know what Community Chest meant if it wasn't a chest to put money into for the good of the whole community, "so people will not be discouraged by one appeal after another."

Ald. W. F. Pinfold, however, said the plebiscite on grants had referred only to charitable grants "and we are dealing now with charitable and other grants," and suggested going down the list of appeals in order.

Ald. Austin Curtis said he had believed last year that it was council's duty to make its own allocations.

Alderman Macmillan's motion to give $15,000 to the chest, for it to allocate, was tabled.

OUT OF ORDER

First application considered was from the Queen Alexandra Solarium. Ald. M. H. Mooney moved the Solarium be given $500, and Ald. Macmillan suggested $1,000 to be used for construction only, but was ruled out of order by the mayor. The $500 grant was approved.

Ald. Arthur Dowell proposed

Car Dash Fails

Wood Tick Kills Child

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP)—A 350-mile dash by car over country roads failed to save the life of paralyzed, eight-year-old Tommy Ross of Chezacut, B.C., it was learned here Thursday.

The boy was one of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. James Ross. Dr. H. K. Atwood, who treated Tommy here, said he believed the boy died of paralysis contracted from a wood tick picked up in his scalp four or five days before he was brought to hospital here.

He said the parents originally thought Tommy had pneumonia and Wednesday had him taken by a relay of cars to Alexis Creek outpost hospital.

Red Cross nurse Lillian Whiteside examined him and ordered him taken to Williams Lake, where doctors were available.

Dr. Atwood found the tick and removed it, but by that time Tommy was paralyzed.

No respirator was available here so Dr. Atwood ordered him taken by ambulance to Vancouver. Ten minutes outside Spuzzum, near Yale, in the Fraser canyon, the boy died.

Boy Falls Out of Car, Just Bruised

A three-year-old girl suffered bruises and minor abrasions to her legs but was described in good condition in St. Joseph's hospital last night after she fell from a moving car along the Trans-Canada Highway opposite Portage Inlet.

Patricia O'Neil was riding alone in the back seat of a car driven toward Victoria by her father, R. G. O'Neil, 444 Vincent, when she apparently caught the door-handle and fell to the pavement. The accident occurred at 9.05 p.m.

Official 88.4—Higher Downtown

Hottest June Day in Years Has Victorians Sweltering

Busloads of home-bound workers swelfered uncomfortably late yesterday afternoon as temperatures estimated in the low 90s hit the downtown area shortly after 4.30 p.m.

It was Victoria's hottest June day in four years.

Weatherman William Mackie reported that the mercury rose to 88.4 degrees at Gonzales. But the temperature was higher downtown.

Victoria's hottest June day was June 25, 1925—at 95.

BREEZE HELPS

But the cooling effect of sea breezes, predicted for the late afternoon, caused a temperature drop of 13 degrees an hour after the high point was reached.

Today will be considerably cooler, it was forecast, with an expected high of 70 degrees.

At least one city resident collapsed in the heat yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Bertha Godtseele, 80, of 3224 Kingsley, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital after she collapsed in the 1300 block Douglas shortly after 5 p.m.

The low humidity forced a shutdown at noon yesterday of logging operations of Canadian Puget Sond plant at Jordan River.

A company spokesman said if there is no change in the conditions by Monday some 70 loggers may return to work on an early shift.

EARLY SHIFTS

Forest camps in the Nanaimo river, Cowichan and Sooke area went on the early shift—5 a.m. to 1.30 p.m.—on Wednesday.

Beaches were crowded around Victoria. But biggest crowds were at Thetis Lake Park. Hundreds of cars crowded into the area, RCMP reported.

Elk and Beaver lakes had their full quota, too.

Elsewhere in B.C. the weather had everybody hot and bothered except in the farther north.

HOPE HOT

Fraser Valley's village of Hope was hottest spot, with 97 degrees. It was 94 at Kamloops, 81 at Vancouver.

Port Hardy was sultriest Vancouver Island community with 89, which is 11 degrees above its previous June record.

Dakota Shovels Snow

LEAD, S.D. (AP) — Merchants shovelled an inch of slush from their sidewalks Thursday morning in Lead, and west of the city, on Highway 85, snowplows cleared up to five inches of snow from the highway.

Rain which fell throughout most ern South Dakota and northern Nebraska, turned to snow in the higher portion of the hills.

Swedes Bomb Embassy

STOCKHOLM (CP) — A home-made bomb was tossed at the Soviet embassy here Thursday night. Police said they arrested three Swedish boys.

Several windows in the embassy were smashed and an embassy automobile was damaged. No one was injured.

The incident apparently was in protest against the current visit by a parliamentary delegation to the Soviet Union.

By Women in Himalayas

Abominable Snow-Baby Reported

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—A Scottish woman climber said Thursday that during a Himalayan expedition she had seen mysterious tracks that might have been made by an "abominable snow-baby."

The all-woman expedition's Sherpa guide told them the tracks belonged to an infant of the "abominable snowmen"—weird animals said by natives to inhabit the icy slopes of the Himalayan mountains.

Mrs. Monica Jackson, leader of the Scotswomen, said the tracks were four inches long — much smaller than the big footprints spotted by other Himalayan climbers and attributed to "snowmen" by natives.

"We decided because of their size they must belong to a female of the species," Mrs. Jackson chuckled. "But our Sherpa insisted they were left by a yeti and when we said this was impossible because they were too small he said 'Yes, yes, this is an eight-year-old yeti.'"

Yeti is the Sherpa word for the fabled snowmen.

Mrs. Jackson and two other members of the expedition reached New Delhi Thursday after two months of hiking in Nepal, during which they climbed an unnamed 22,000-foot peak in the Jugal Himal range.

Disaster of 1903 Recalled

Villagers Scared By Mountain Steam

FRANK, Alta. (CP) — Strange steam-like clouds rising intermittently from the top of Turtle mountain are causing some concern among residents of this small southwestern Alberta mining community.

Turtle mountain is the same one down which in 1903 an avalanche suddenly thundered, killing at least 66 people in the village at its base.

The clouds have been rising from the mountaintop about every 15 minutes. They started early Wednesday.

Occasional falls of rock from the mountain slope into the jagged valley below have been reported.

So far no one has been injured. RCMP are investigating the phenomenal occurrence but had no immediate comment.

Rock-falls from the barren slope are common spring occurrences as spring waters loosen the shale. But this is the first time that clouds have been seen rising from the mountain top.

The slide on April 29, 1903, which struck the sleeping community at 4 a.m., wiped out its eastern outskirts. Several years later a government edict evacuated the fringe area of the avalanche, and the present townsite of Frank, about half a mile to the west, is not felt to be in any danger.

The population of the once-bustling coal-mining community—in the heart of the Crow's Nest pass—dwindled after the avalanche and now is only a few hundred.

Spinster Immigrant Aboard Airborne Ark

AMSTERDAM, Holland (Reuters) — Miss Jacoba Bregman left here Thursday night to start a new life in Nova Scotia, travelling in an airborne ark with her 23 dogs, tractor, and other belongings.

The 47-year-old Dutch spinster took off in a chartered airliner for Sydney, N.S. Her only regret was that her three horses, her Dartmoor pony and her donkey couldn't go along in the plane, too. Canadian health regulations made it necessary to send them by sea.

Newsreel floodlights lit the airport as the sturdily-built emigrant, attired in riding breeches and boots, supervised loading.

The total weight of Miss Bregman's animals and effects is five tons. But KLM Royal Dutch Airlines officials would not reveal the cost of the charter.

Miss Bregman decided to leave her whitewashed cottage and 32 acres at Garderen because she said she wanted "more freedom for myself and my animals."

Her new farm is at Sydney.

Mayor Storms at Suggestion

'Do-Nothing Example,' Says Alderman

Council Indecisive as Macmillan Seeks Auditorium Support

BY H. O. MARRION

Mayor Claude L. Harrison yesterday stormed against the idea of using capital city grant funds for a civic auditorium. But in spite of the mayor's opposition, city council referred the suggestion to its finance committee.

"You'll kill the goose that laid the golden egg," the mayor warned after council had taken this action on a resolution by Ald. Robert Macmillan.

Alderman Macmillan moved that "the city council endorse in principle the stand taken by Premier W. A. C. Bennett that funds from the capital city grant be used for the construction of a civic auditorium, and that the city representatives on the special capital city grant committee be requested to take this proposal under serious consideration."

"An auditorium has already been under consideration for nearly a year," said the mayor.

Ald. M. H. Mooney added that he didn't think it was possible for council to authorize the provincial government to spend the grant funds in any one direction.

There was suddenly a lot of talk about an auditorium, the mayor said "and everyone's jumping to grab the credit."

Credit didn't matter, said Ald. J. D. Smith. The question of "trading the grant for an auditorium" should be discussed. He moved that the resolution be referred to the finance committee.

Alderman Macmillan said he was only suggesting the council approve the idea in principle.

"This council has yet to make any recommendation whatever on the use of the grant," he said. "I think this council should express its desires."

It was all very well for the mayor to talk about the idea of an auditorium rolling along, Alderman Macmillan said. It would roll along for years.

The grant, said the mayor, was given by the government for what it chose to do, and "I think we should leave it alone."

Ald. W. F. Pinfold said he didn't think council should take any immediate action. As far as council was concerned, he said, it had nothing to say about how the grant for beautification should be spent.

The city, he recalled, had been seeking payment of taxes by the government, and this much larger sum, if gained, might be used better for an auditorium at a future time.

"It's a great political football," said the mayor.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, seconder of the resolution and a member of the capital city grant committee, said he thought present beautification plans should be completed, but also thought the auditorium idea should have further study.

Alderman Macmillan said council members had said council had nothing to do with spending the grant funds but wanted to refer the question to committee—"another example of this do-nothing council."

The mayor took exception to this remark and said council had accomplished a great deal, and in a general, unrecorded chorus of ayes, the resolution was referred to finance committee.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THE milkman is looked upon as a good-natured fellow who has a smile for everybody. But in fact he often chokes back an impulse to break a quart bottle over a customer's head.

I had a talk the other day with a Victoria milkman. He said most of his customers are good people, but there are some who heat up his temper beyond the pasteurization point.

One of the worst is the small-scale confidence man who hoards bottles and tries to cash them in for milk.

The customer has obtained the bottles free of charge from the milkman in the first place. Sometimes the milkman has to make good the losses out of his own pocket.

So the customer is trying to sell the milkman back his own bottles.

* * *

A milkman has to pay for his load of milk every day. But in many dairies there is a cash "float" of $40 or $80 which he can use to cover the day's losses. If he allows the customer a great deal of credit, the float will soon vanish and he has to dig into his own pocket.

Now and then a customer skips out owing a large bill, and the milkman has to make up the loss.

* * *

Some people use bottles to hold oil, acid, weed-killer or other household substances. When the bottles have outlived their usefulness for such purpose, or when the customer gets a sudden attack of conscience, he turns the bottle in to the milkman again.

It might be possible to remove oil and smelly chemicals from a bottle by strong cleansing processes—but it isn't worth the trouble and risk. Such bottles are usually thrown out and broken.

There are many good people who put their bottles out early and leave out the correct number and size of bottles with the proper tokens or tickets.

On the other hand, there are people who forget to put out bottles, then phone to the dairy after the driver has passed, demanding service.

And there are people who drop their tickets or tokens in a bottle half-full of water—which reduces tickets to a soggy mass in summer and often freezes solid in winter.

Children can be a nuisance. The driver has to watch carefully for tiny ones when he backs and turns. And there are cheeky moppets in some districts who clamber all over his truck. It's funny, the milkman said, but in certain districts the kids all seem well-mannered; and in other districts, not too far off, they are rude, sassy and defiant.

A milkman can scarcely raise a tired smile when people pretend to see likenesses between himself and children on his route. All that stuff about a wife at every car port is an old joke to him.

It isn't true. Milkmen are in too much of a hurry for dalliance, anyway. The law doesn't allow them to start before 7 a.m., and they are in a rush to get the milk delivered early, particularly in the hot weather, when they try to keep the stuff wet and cool en route. (They used to start deliveries at midnight—but my milkman friend claims they were a pretty moral bunch even then.)

Haircuts Due For Aubrietia

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

The first Aubrietia display, which has been unusually full and charming this spring, is now just about over. The plants will require some attention immediately, or they will weaken themselves running to seed, and the straggey growth which follows after the flowers will often cause considerable die-back.

To prevent this, take a sharp pair of scissors and clip the plants halfway back, making a neat, hemispherical tuft from each plant. Don't be half-hearted about the job—Aubrietias enjoy a good haircut, and they'll soon demonstrate it by sending out a lot of healthy side-shoots which will give you a second show of bloom.

FEED WELL

The plants will be somewhat exhausted after such a strenuous period of flowering, so it is a good idea to follow up the haircut with a good feed.

You can give them liquid manure or soluble fertilizer in water, although with this particular plant I prefer to mix a big double handful of Vigoro into a bucketful of rather coarse sand and go round my plants dumping about a cupful into the heart of each clump, plus a bit more around the edges.

The sand induces the formation of new roots, while the fertilizer provides the nutrition.

If you need a few more Aubrietia plants to fill up odd corners of the rock garden or rock wall, this is a good time to lift a clump. Moisten the soil first, lift with a handfork, and separate the clump carefully by hand into small tufts.

Make sure each tuft has a fair share of roots attached. Replant the pieces where you want them to bloom, enriching each pocket of soil with a little peat moss and bone meal first.

It often happens that all the Aubrietia in your own garden is the same shade, probably mauve, and you have been casting covetous eyes on the red and white plants in your neighbor's garden.

You can't very well ask him to lift one of his plants especially to give you a rooted tuft, but you can catch him when he is clipping over his plants, and beg a few clippings to use as cuttings.

Better still, wait until the new side-shoots form after the haircut. When these are around two inches long, they make excellent cuttings which make roots readily.

Prepare each cutting by removing the two bottom leaves and cutting through the stem horizontally with a razor blade, just beneath the bottom joint.

Moisten the cut end, dip into a hormone rooting powder, shake off any excess powder, and insert in a shady bed of sandy soil. Covering each cutting with a jam jar will induce quicker rooting. As soon as new growth is seen, the rooted cutting can be moved to its sunny flowering quarters.

OUTDOOR BEAUTY

Any gardener who has ever grown Incarvillea Delavayi successfully becomes a booster for this plant as soon as he has seen the pink, golden-throated flowers open up on their long stems, for this plant reaches about the same standard of Oriental beauty outdoors as the Gloxinia does as a pot plant.

In order to get really large flowers, with petals the consistency and texture of fine velvet, should be scraped away and replaced with a dressing of peat moss, bone meal and wood ashes, one cupful each of the bone meal and wood ashes to each bucket of peat moss. This induces the formation of a lot of fibrous feeding roots.

WEEKLY FEEDING

In addition, the plants should be given a weekly feed of half-strength soluble fertilizer, half a tablespoonful per gallon of water and two quarts per plant, until the close of the flowering period. If the flower buds should show any reluctance to open, substitute saltpetre for the regular soluble fertilizer, but only for one feed.

It is helpful, too, in growing Incarvillea, to remove any of those very small leaves which sometimes form in the inside of the rosettes, as these reduce the size of this year's flowers.

Eat Your Troubles Away

Satisfy Hidden Hunger To Help Clear Thinking

These who are undernourished and don't realize it will find a guide to better health and greater vigor in "Eat Your Troubles Away," latest work by Lelord Kordel, researcher and lecturer on nutrition, appearing regularly in The Daily Colonist.

BY LELORD KORDEL

By making certain that you eat a diet to maintain the proper chemical balance in your body, you restore your functional balance and check the effects of stress upon your system.

Often, by relieving some of the physical tensions caused by hidden hunger, you can soften the inner climate in which you must do your thinking.

An abused, undernourished, harassed body generally houses a mind incapable of optimum thinking and reasoning power. As the central power station of the body, the brain must be kept in top physical condition through natural means so its mental activities can be controlled. Unhealthy thought habits have a pretty hard time dwelling in a contented body.

The positive thinker is able to love someone besides himself. Please do not confuse love with sex love. Sex is love which loves to be loved, and is a subject which desires to possess the object. Being selfish, sex is always sensitive and shrinks from anything which could hurt itself. It becomes incapable of understanding sacrifice. Pride and sex are psychologically inseparable.

Love can be show in all relationships—man and wife, father and daughter, mother and son . . . It is self-surrender because of the nobility of the person loved. Love and humility are inseparable.

Hatred expressed hurts those about you; hatred repressed creates nervousness and symptoms that can stimulate almost any physical disease.

For example, unexpressed resentment may cause hemorrhoids. Contracting the sphincter muscles is another form of grinding the teeth. Paroxysms of unexpected anger may result in paroxysms of the heart muscle. Kidneys respond to emotional upset with frequency of urination. The poisonous accumulation of unexpressed feelings causes rheumatism, asthma, and many other disabling diseases.

Drain your mind of the worries, the resentments, irritations, guilt reactions, and annoyances that have collected during the day just as thoroughly as you pull the stopper in the sink.

Then you can refill it with refreshing thoughts of emotional maturity such as these:

You are going to free yourself from fears, anxieties, and tensions.

You will find greater satisfaction in giving than in receiving.

You will contribute to the improvement of your home, your community, your nation, and your world.

You seek give-and-take relationships to form satisfying and permanent loyalties.

You profit from your mistakes and successes.

You use your leisure time creatively.

"Grandma Moses faces her sundown years with positive thinking. She makes new friends, participates in community activities, and gives service. Her main interest is in people.

"Grandma" sums up her way of growing old gracefully: "I've helped some people."

Recognize hate for the destructive emotional force that it is. Love is the constructive psychological force of a positive mind. Love resurrects people who have lost life while they live. It is the force that gives new hope, joy, vitality, and invincibility."

Those of you who truly want a powerful new lease on life will find it possible through love and a positive mind.

Paris Response To Graham Exceeds London Enthusiasm

PARIS (UP)—A leading pro-Catholic French newspaper today paid tribute to Billy Graham for his success in one of the toughest crusades undertaken by the American evangelist.

The 37-year-old North Carolian wound up his five-day crusade in this predominately Roman Catholic nation last night. Attendance far exceeded even the most optimistic expectations.

Wednesday night, Graham attracted the biggest crowd in his Paris crusade—9,956 persons—to the Palais des Sports. Excluding last night's crowd it brought to nearly 32,000 the number who have heard Graham preach, even though an interpreter must translate sermons phrase-by-phrase.

And the percentage of those answering his appeals to make the "Decision for Christ" has been about three times greater than at Graham's highly-successful recent crusade in London.

The pro-Catholic newspaper, Le Figaro, said that Graham had attracted listeners ranging from high society to factory workers.

"Billy Graham's success proves one thing: The need that men have for recourse to the spiritual," the newspaper said.

Craig Confirms Timber Deal, Denies He Was 'Bought Off'

Tofino logger Sammy Craig admitted before the Sloan Royal Commission yesterday that he made an agreement with B.C. Forest Products for 20,000,000 feet of timber in the Clayquot area, but stoutly denied he had been "bought off" from opposing a BCFP forest management licence.

Mr. Craig appeared before the commission as a result of charges by J. Gordon Gibson, [illegible] "money talks" in the granting of forest management licences. Mr. Gibson said in an earlier brief that Mr. Craig had dropped his appeal against the B.C. Forest Products licence because the company offered him the timber as a form of bribe.

APPLIED EARLIER

Mr. Craig told the commission he had applied for the block of forest six months before the hearing on the B.C. Forest Products licence. He said his protest against the licence was based on the fact he would lose that block of timber. The day before the hearing, he said, he went to B.C. Forest Products and asked officials if some arrangement could not be worked out.

"I asked for and got exactly the timber I had originally applied for," Mr. Craig told the commission.

He said he dropped his appeal because it was based on the loss he would suffer if the 20,000,000-feet block was included in the B.C. Forest Products licence. He said the 100 people who signed his petition were not concerned so much with the abolition of the Clayoquot Working Circle as with the loss he would sustain.

Mr. Gibson had charged that Mr. Craig was paid off with 26,000,000 feet of timber to drop his appeal. He said B.C. Forest Products had gone to Mr. Craig and offered him the timber to silence him.

NO SUCH TALK

"That conversation (as quoted in Mr. Gibson's earlier brief) never took place," Mr. Craig said. "I never at any time said 'gentlemen, give me 26,000,000 feet of timber and tell me what you want me to do' and I resent very much the implication that I did," Mr. Craig testified.

He said the company had never intimidated him in any way or asked to drop his appeal.

The agreement between Mr. Craig and B.C. Forest Products was produced during yesterday's hearing. Chief Justice Gordon Sloan asked to examine the agreement to decide whether it was pertinent enough to be admitted as evidence.

Mr. Craig told the commission that his "sympathies still lie with the small logger."

"They should get enough timber; but I don't think the public working circles that were set up were the answer," he said. "There is not enough timber in them of a suitable grade." Earlier he claimed the Clayoquot working circle had little good timber in it and that he had been the only operator working in the area.

FIRST REFUSAL

He suggested that 30 per cent of the Crown timber in forest management licences should be turned over to small loggers so they could sell it to the licence holders on a first refusal basis at market prices.

H. G. Munro, president of B.C. Forest Products, said later the terms of his firm's contract with Mr. Craig included a first refusal clause based on market prices.

Mr. Gibson turned lawyer at yesterday's hearing and cross-examined Mr. Craig. Chief Justice Sloan cautioned the former MLA to confine his remarks to questions after he became involved in arguments with the witness and made statements in reply to the latter's answers.

"I see nothing fundamentally different in our stories," Mr. Gibson said at one point. He said the differences were mainly on the words used in a conversation between the two.

At one point Mr. Craig charged that Mr. Gibson had misinterpreted the story of the "deal" with B.C. Forest Products.

"The statements (contained in Mr. Gibson's brief) are not what I said in Vancouver," said Mr. Craig. "They are twisted around and not a true interpretation of what happened."

FRIENDLY BASIS

He said that in his talks with Mr. Munro of BCFP the company president asked him if their differences "could not be settled on a friendly basis."

"There was no 'proposition' made to me, only an agreement between us," Mr. Craig said.

Mr. Gibson concluded his questioning this way:

"Have not a lot of your ideas changed since that time, Mr. Craig? Have you not changed your story a little?"

Under cross-examination by Ronald Howard, counsel for B.C. Forest Industries, Mr. Craig said 100 petitioners had signed his petition "solely on the fact that we were fighting for a block of timber." He said they weren't concerned with the loss of the Clayoquot working circle because the timber was not good anyway.

"Not one person (of the 100) has ever complained since that time about the deal with B.C. Forest Products and the elimination of the public working circle," Mr. Craig said.

Tanker Wreck Kills 20

MARGATE, England (Reuters)—Twenty-two desperate seamen and a terrified young blonde woman swam through a 10-foot-high wall of flame to survival Thursday but 20 others aboard their blazing Swedish tanker perished in the English channel.

The struggle against blazing oil began at 2:40 a. m. when the 10,788-ton Swedish tanker Johannishus and the 7,256-ton Panamanian cargo ship Buccaneer collided 20 miles east of this British port.

Seconds later a roaring column of fire and black smoke leapt hundreds of feet over the ships. Burning oil cascaded from the stricken tanker and spread a death carpet across the sea.

With their life boats ablaze, the 43 aboard the tanker jumped. The Panamanian ship, its bow ablaze, backed away and quickly beat out the fire.

HELD HUSBAND'S HAND

Attractive blonde Mrs. Barbro Svensson, 23, wife of the tanker's first engineer, gripped her husband's hand as they jumped with the others.

"It was terrifying," she said later over a cup of tea and a cigaret. "There were screams as the flames licked at the swimmers. I could see men trying to help each other. I had almost given up hope when the rescue boats arrived."

British, Dutch, German and French vessels fought a running battle with the flaming oil to pick up the survivors. At dawn planes helped in rescue operations.

Mrs. Svensson spent two hours in the water and became separated from her husband. Upon reaching nearby Dover, her first question was "Where is my husband?" Told he had been saved, she burst into tears.

Only one of the 20 missing men's bodies was retrieved during the day. The captain, his chief mate, third mate and several stewards were lost in the inferno.

Many of the survivors were in hospital with severe burns and poisoning from swallowing oil and sea water.

Council Approves $22,250 in Grants

a donation of $3,500, equal to taxes, for the YMCA. Alderman Pinfold tried in vain to have the YMCA considered later with the Community Chest, of which it is a member. The $3,500 grant was approved.

Alderman Mooney moved that the Salvation Army be given no grant, "seeing it is self-supporting," and the motion carried over the objection of Alderman Macmillan, who said, "That's unfair."

Alderman Macmillan also voted alone against Alderman Mooney's motion that no grant be given to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Alderman Mooney called for grants of $100 for the Boy Scouts' world jamboree, which he called an outstanding event in the Scout world, and $200 for the Scouts' headquarters building. Both grants were approved.

GALLERY UP

The $3,100 grant for the Art Gallery was moved by Alderman Pinfold, but the mayor suggested the city might get into legal difficulties if it voted the money without finding out about "the so-called trust" in connection with establishment of the centre.

Alderman Pinfold said he thought an intermunicipal trust for the centre had been suggested but had never been formed, but the mayor insisted that the question should be investigated.

"Why do you all want to jump in the dark?" he demanded.

Council eventually passed a motion by Alderman Pinfold that $3,100 be earmarked for the gallery when and if the donation was found to be legal.

A $2,500 donation to the YWCA was approved, although Ald. Brent Murdoch this time tried to have it considered with the Community Chest grant.

Alderman Mooney moved that no grant be given to the Symphony Society. Alderman Pinfold made an amendment that $1,000 should be donated and council also voted on an amendment calling for a $500 donation.

The motion and both amendments were defeated, the motion by a tie vote in which the mayor and Aldermen Mooney, Murdoch and Macmillan voted against any grant. Without a further motion, council moved on to the Red Cross Society application, and voted to give no grant in this case.

Council approved a $775 grant for the Navy League of Canada, nothing for the Victoria West Lawn Bowling Club, $2,000 for the Sara Spencer Foundation $200 for the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Society, $4,150 for the Aged Women's Home, and nothing for the Victoria and District Amateur Baseball Association.

It approved a grant of $300 to the Girl Guides Association, $200 to the Legion of Frontiersmen, and $25 to the Victoria City Police Revolver Club.

DEFEATED

Alderman Mooney moved that nothing be donated to the John Howard Society, but a tie vote defeated the motion and the application was tabled to be considered as part of the Community Chest.

Alderman Mooney moved that $2,000 be granted to the Community Chest, and Alderman Pinfold said that since $6,000 was being granted to the YMCA and YWCA, another $2,000 would make total donations to the chest and chest agencies $8,000, the same as last year.

Only Alderman Macmillan voted against the $2,000 donation.

Grants approved totalled $22,250, and council agreed to set aside $2,750 for contingencies.

Bennett To Attend Ottawa Job Meeting

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said yesterday he will be "very pleased" to attend a conference on unemployment with the federal cabinet in Ottawa June 20.

The premier received an official invitation from Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent Wednesday. The conference results from a previous meeting of provincial premiers in Ottawa several weeks ago.

Purpose will be to settle on a formula for aid to the unemployed by federal, provincial and municipal governments. Premier Bennett earlier suggested a 40-40-20 split, with municipalities bearing the smallest share.

He said yesterday he would not necessarily hold for the 40-40-20 formula.

"We will agree to any formula which is fair," he said.

'L'Etat? C'est Moi!'

LOUIS XIV once postulated the theory that he was the state. He was in error. Charles I on another occasion put his neck out to the same extent. It was severed. For going on 650 years British parliamentary process has been slowly broadening from precedent to precedent, but it has not for long ever varied from a sure baseline—the will of a majority. That is democracy; that is the institution of "the Queen in Parliament" to which this country as a British Commonwealth nation owes full allegiance. Defence Minister C. D. Howe is wrong therefore when he stands in his place in the House of Commons and says he will liquidate laws from the statute books in his own time. He will do nothing of the kind!

For all of his years in office as a member of the federal cabinet, and in spite of demonstrated business efficiency in matters placed by Parliament under his control, Mr. Howe has not yet learned the fundamental reality of that institution. Every Canadian Parliament is a committee in trusteeship elected by the people to carry out the majority will. Every Canadian government is a sub-committee of that committee with the principal function of proposing action in the assembly. "Her Majesty assents . . .," the time-honored phrase used at prorogation, completes an indivisible chain of authority. So Mr. Howe of himself will neither make or repeal any Canadian law.

Save for the arrogance of the words used, most people would have been ready to forego comment on such a bad-tempered, futile outburst. Prime Minister St. Laurent, and not Mr. Howe, has the duty of advising Parliament of the administration's desires, especially on vital matters affecting the living constitution. "When the emergency is through we will liquidate this . . . I do not propose to be told by any honorable member just when I will liquidate it"—the words attributed to Mr. Howe—have twice too many "I's" in it for the size of the hatband. Mr. Howe will do what he is told to do by Parliament.

A Question of Overhead

DECENTRALIZATION of hospital services has much to be said for it in theory, for other reasons besides civil defence. It is understandable also that the people of an expanding region several miles from the nearest metropolitan hospital should want one of their own. Practical considerations enter the picture, however, and in the case of the campaign in Central Saanich for a separate, 50-bed hospital they would appear to outweigh the theoretical advantages.

Financially, for one thing, it is extremely doubtful that the central and northern part of the peninsula is in a position yet to support an independent hospital. In time no doubt it will be if development continues at the present rate, but just now the well-intentioned proposal seems a little premature.

The modern hospital is not merely an institution providing beds and nursing care. If it is to function independently it must have an enormous investment in diagnostic, operational, dietary and laboratory equipment. The cost of these items comes close to the cost of building the hospital itself—may even run higher if the hospital is fully equipped. But that is only the beginning. The services in addition to personal attention require a large staff of technicians and specially trained nurses to maintain and operate them. In a small hospital much of this special equipment may be required only infrequently; but it must be there and the specialists must be on hand.

In a centralized hospital serving a large population, purchase and operation of equipment imposes a heavy burden also—one of the most serious the modern hospital has to face. These institutions, however, are in a much better position economically to meet the expense because the element of idleness of machines and attendants is less pronounced than in a small hospital where, for a fraction of the average number of patients, the equipment facilities would have to be duplicated.

It has been stated authoritatively that for much less cost than that of a separate hospital a 50-bed addition could be made to Royal Jubilee, where all necessary equipment is available. Such an addition should overcome the objection that accommodation for Saanich cases in the city is inadequate. Distance from Victoria undoubtedly causes some inconvenience, but with the highways in their present excellent condition that does not appear to be unreasonable.

True to Form

IT is always easy to tell other people what they should do. When one is without responsibility for action it is a pleasant pastime to advise those who have. The CCF leader, Mr. Coldwell, is thus running true to human habit when he says the time is ripe for the United States to recognize Red China. How precisely he knows this, not being a member of the Eisenhower cabinet, is not quite so clear. If nothing else the Americans are likely to consider they are the best judges of their own decisions, especially in connection with a late enemy who brain-washes U.S. prisoners of war and still holds U.S. airmen captive on trumped-up charges of espionage.

Mr. Coldwell is running true to form in another direction, that of leniency with Communist countries. Any time it is a question of Soviet policy against U.S. policy it seems that the CCF prefers to blame U.S. policy. This notwithstanding that the United States even allowing that her international leadership is sometimes immature and inconsistent, is the bulwark of the Western alliance and the nation upon which Canada in particular must rely in the event of a global crisis. One does not have to endorse every U.S. move in order to place that nation far ahead of Soviet state in the matter of preference.

The CCF leader says also that Red China should get a UN seat and Chiang Kai-shek be put where he can't start a war. Not a word, it will be noted, about any fear of Mao Tse-tung starting a war. He already started one or at least certainly prolonged one in Korea—in which the U.S. suffered some 136,000 casualties—but seemingly this does not matter. Perhaps the CCF thinks Red China is lily-white pure by comparison with Chiang.

Far Eastern difficulties are not to be solved by gratuitious advice from a source unlikely to commend itself to the U.S., however. Mr. Coldwell can afford to be airy about things: President Eisenhower cannot. Nor is the solution so simple a matter for the latter as it seems to be for the former. Mr. Coldwell is not the head of a state which has no valid reason to regard its late enemy with undue benevolence; he is merely a minority politician of another land. Some day perhaps Red China will be rewarded for its belligerence by a seat at the UN council table, but U.S. sentiment can be excused if it deems that day not yet to have dawned.

Opening Up An Old Sore

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

JOHN Foster Dulles' interest in setting up the fate of the European satellites as a major issue for the Big Four conference goes back to a time long before he was U.S. secretary of state.

He has always urged that the Western world do everything possible to keep up the spirits of the non-Communist undergrounds, supporting their hope for eventual liberation, but not encouraging them into any premature acts which might produce costly reprisals.

* * *

In 1952 one of candidate Eisenhower's speech writers, incorporating some Dulles material into a campaign address, carried the thought into a suggestion of an active liberation movement. The immediate reaction from Europe was that a suggestion of that type was dangerous. Underground leaders over there have generally preached that their cohorts should concentrate on organization and safety now, in contemplation of a time, such as a war, when action will be possible.

Russia's recent wooing of Yugoslavia, however, has given rise to hope that she may at least be intending some relaxation of her grip on the other Balkan and Central European countries.

But she reacted violently only recently when Dulles, on his return from the Austrian treaty signing, mentioned the possibility of lifting the Iron Curtain.

* * *

Russia has just formalized the control she has maintained over the armed forces of the satellites. Undoubtedly she remembers what happened in East Germany two years ago when she slackened the reins a little bit there. She had to put down a revolt.

But Russia did agree at Yalta and Potsdam to help foster the independence of these nations, and the Austrian treaty came in fulfillment of another of her long-ignored obligations. So does the just-announced return of 62 American vessels she has kept illegally ever since the end of lend-lease.

Dulles apparently intends to go down the list of Russia's obligations at the Big Four conferences, in an attempt to impress upon her the necessity of establishing some record of keeping agreements before seeking new ones.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

A READER sends me a clipping of a recent column by Barry Mather, mainland wit and connoisseur of strange diversions. It tells of the approach of the tourist season and cites the distinctive Canadian features awaiting them in B.C., viz:

Boston beans, world series TV, Hollywood films, Superman and the New Yorker, Manhattan cocktails, Saratago chips, and so on, including perhaps Liberace.

Oh Canada!—in appropriately small type.

"What is your opinion?" asks my correspondent, who goes on: "And are you like everyone else fed up with listening on our CJVI to all these lousy songs and tunes—excepting Al Smith?"

Well now, the first thing to note is that Mr. Mathers is an authentic humorist of the sly, subtle, solemn-faced variety. He can laugh at you, me, and himself with equal ease, and have his tongue in his cheek without its protruding.

I wouldn't wonder but what he wrote that column after driving to his office in a Detroit-style car.

* * *

This brings up all the commodities he mentions, American in origin, and a thousand others besides. We are overwhelmed with them, granted. But we must face the geographical facts of life.

These are inescapable. So small a nation as Canada, population-wise, cannot help but be influenced by United States habits, exports, and ways of life. There will come a day, I don't doubt, although I shan't be here to see it, when the position is reversed, when U.S. life is greatly influenced by Canadian customs, inventions and goods.

Meanwhile we are on the short end of the stick.

But, and the but is important, in great part we are not averse to these American imports, each according to his taste of course.

Who among us does not at one time or another eat American food, ride in American cars, read American magazines, watch American teevee or listen to American radio stations, follow American sports, go to see American movies, take advantage of American technical skills, and so on without limit.

* * *

Only he or she who NEVER favors ANY American product whatsoever, and I doubt if that can be said of a single one among us, is therefore in a position to cast a stone.

In many ways, you see, deplore it or not as we may, the United States pattern is the North American pattern and we in Canada are North American. The map is not to be denied.

True enough this makes it a hard job to keep a Canadian head above American water, but it can be done if you keep your mind free and alert even while enjoying American amenities.

As to CJVI, I think it's as good as any other local radio station; I'd say myself it's likely to be far better than most U.S. local stations.

The songs and tunes my reader complains about are, many of them, the last word in inanity. Local radio stations carry them, for Tin Pan Alley—what an apt caption—dominates the show. And the so-called hit parade is a "hit" all over.

But, you know, if you have a sing-song round the piano, or in a hall while awaiting a speaker, where do many of the tunes we sing come from? Why, the U.S.A.

And we sing them with gusto, don't we?

Never mind, though, Canada will get there, give her time. And she has that in her favor.

Letter from London

Death Throes of U.K. Railways

By RICHARD L. THOMAS, Daily Colonist Correspondent

LONDON (Air Mail)—With Britain's railway strike one week old an advertisement appeared in a Paris newspaper headed "For a holiday which is different, visit Britain." It had the hollow ring of a grim jest, but with a little transposition of words it could tell the story as I write. It is a Britain which is very different from what it was only eight days ago.

It is not just the fuss of trying to get to work. It is not just the headache of trying to get raw materials into the factories. It is not even the spectre of two or three million unemployed in a few weeks time, haunting though that it is.

It is more that we are watching the death agony of a dying railway system—dying not because they are no longer useful but because they have been sandwiched between a bureaucratic tyranny of semi-civil service management and the grabbing of three lusty unions from the fathomless pit of shekels represented by the treasury.

* * *

British Railways cannot go broke unless Britain goes broke. Demand is piled on demand, deficit is piled on deficit and now it seems that one union at least is quite content to see if it can smash Britain—all for the sake of the price of a packet of cigarettes.

The basic trouble is civil war between two of the three railway unions. The Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, which represents 67,000 footplatemen, is afraid of the National Union of Railwaymen with nearly 400,000 members. The society wants to make its members the corps d'elite of the railway world. It is fighting for differentials—the principle that no matter how much pay is increased the corps d'elite must always get so much more.

The National Union of Railwaymen, not so socially conscious, made an agreement with an all-round pay increase for everyone. It meant that although the drivers got more money it was not the same proportional differential. The society wouldn't have it: their basic pay must be X per cent above the rest, or else. And now we have the "or else" and the whole row involves 18 cents a week for the lowest grade footplate men and 65 cents a week for the highest. For that Britain is the victim of a creeping paralysis.

* * *

Little Jim Baty stands five feet nothing. He started life as barber's father boy when he was 10. He finished up as an express driver before becoming assistant secretary of the society. If is just one of life's paradoxes that his then boss—Bill Allen—is now chief labor officer of the British Railways. Little Jim got Allen's job with nationalization, and it was little Jim who had to tell his former boss that the strike was on.

If you tell Jim Baty that, even if he gets everything he has asked for, it will take his lower grade men three years to pick up each week's wages lost by the strike he says, "It is a matter of principle." Yet principles did not prevent the same Jim Baty travelling from Transport House in Westminster to his society's mansion headquarters in Hampstead in a train driven by a member of the National Union of Railwaymen. And if the trains are not convenient he travels by car.

* * *

Yet somehow Jim Baty cannot see the writing—not on the wall but on the roads and in the skies. The highways of Britain are clogged with traffic, trucks, coaches and motor cars. Aircraft are buzzing hither and thither in a manner reminiscent of the bombing raids in the war—only this time they are carrying mails, freight and passengers.

And that is not all. Britain is rediscovering one of its oldest forms of transport—the inland waterways. Barges are being pulled from weed-encrusted bays. The modern barge "horse" with diesel intestines is heard chugging away by day and by night, pulling not one barge but a convoy. The canals are coming to life again. Even old Father Thames which has become a river of pleasure seekers above Putney Bridge is getting to work again, and wharves from Windsor and Reading to Oxford are being used for commercial traffic for the first time in 30 years. Grimy barges skim past gay punts and pretty girls in floral dresses.

And whilst Jim Baty deprives his members of the better part of a million pounds for their first week's pay Grimsby fish merchants have announced that in future all their fish will be sent by road. They have discovered that the fish arrives fresher in about half the time at approximately one-third of the rail transport cost. That will mean a loss of £100,000 a week to the railways. And Jim does not seem to realize that thousands of people are making their first trip by air—and liking it, resolved to go that way in future.

And some of our heavy industries are discovering that in our canals, if they think ahead a little bit, the heavy stuff gets there just the same—at half the cost. And if Mr. Baty cared to look at the statistics he would find that 60 per cent of all goods and 50 per cent of all passengers were carried by road before the strike—and ponder what acceleration he has given to those figures.

Only a foolish man would fail to realize that the Britain we have seen in the first week of the railway strike will stay—at least in part. Some will never go back to the railways and it could be that the canals will have a new lease of life.

* * *

Yet Little Jim Baty's real worry is Big Jim Campbell. He is the six-foot boss of the National Union of Railwaymen. As Britain's railways move more and more to electric and diesel traction the NUR gets more and more motormen who have not gone through the engine sheds. Within 15 years, if the railways plan goes to schedule, there will be no steam locomotives left.

Little Jim hoped to retire next year in a blaze of glory, having established his corps d'elite—with all the sadness of a proud cavalry regiment in an age of armored mechanization. Now he's not so certain. He finds that not only is he fighting his chosen foes—British Railways and the NUR—but the whole of the trades union movement. His is the only union not in step.

I suspect Jim Baty is not a very happy man. He fumbles with telegrams expressing "loyalty" from his own branches like a drowning man clutching a straw. Yet no one thinks Baty insincere. He loves his locomen. He lives a simple suburban life—ordinarily. Just now he seems a very little "big shot" out of his depth.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

THE most dishonest man I have met in my life had the most open, honest, straightforward gaze I ever saw in the human eye. He prided himself on his ability to look everyone in the eye, and rather fancied himself at staring other people down. Yet he was as crooked as a dog's hind leg.

A great many people find difficulty in looking others in the eye. Indeed, some of the most honest people, through shyness or timidity, give the impression of shiftiness because of their unwillingness to meet others' eyes. Some years ago, The Packsack gave a hint to those so troubled. It is this. When you have to face a gimlet-eyed person who has the habit of staring fiercely, do not lower your eyes. Simply focus your eyes on the bridge of the nose of the fierce-eyed one. It is a trick easily learned.

When the boss calls you in and glares accusingly at you, do not flinch. Simply fix your gaze on the bridge of his nose between his eyes, hold them there, and answer his questions calmly. In a moment, indeed in a few seconds, you will observe the masterful airs of the boss start to wobble and weaken. He thinks, of course, you are meeting his eyes. And in your eyes, strangely enough, he sees something he can't meet. He can't meet them, because you are not really meeting his. But he thinks you are. A vice-president of a bank tells me he employs this bridge of the nose technique with all big businessmen with whom he is discussing large financial transactions. He thus avoids being hypnotized.

There is another little trick The Packsack would now like to divulge. When you see people staring at you, say on the train or in a restaurant or in any other gathering where you cannot easily escape this attention, do not struggle to evade their stares. Just centre your attention on a point one foot either side of the starer, as if your were looking at something there. Then harden your eyes, and adopt a cold, intimidating expression such as Marlon Brando uses. This will startle and intimidate the other and he will look away, glad he is not the object of your malign gaze.

Often the person you so treat will turn out to be your wife's uncle or your cousin Tilly, whom you haven't seen in years, and who is merely trying to catch your eyes and be recognized.

Senses and Sensibility

From The BBC London Letter

"IF you had the hearing of an antelope in London you'd go mad," said Professor A. M. Low, broadcasting in the BBC's "In Town Tonight" program. "I put a microphone on top of my house and gave it the power of an antelope's ears. The sound of a policeman's feet on the pavement below sounded like thunder and I could hear people talking inside the houses over the road."

As man changed the universe through his inventions so his own senses were changing, but they were still very different from those possessed by other animals. If human beings had the eyes of wasps they would be horrified to see the little creatures wriggling in the bath water and if they had the noses of dogs a new world would be opened to them.

Professor Low did not think that any further great changes in man's senses were coming. "Brain is becoming more important than brawn," he said. "In the old days a man was considered to be somebody if he could eat a couple of steaks for breakfast. Now we'd think he was greedy.

"Our development lies with the brain," he forecast. "The courting couple of the future will be two large and beautiful brains who will sit and exchange powerful thought radiations and marvel that their ancestors once had hair and claws and wasted in heat 98 per cent of the electricity they used for lighting their homes."

Professor Low, a well-known scientist who has been president of the Institute of Patentees for 12 years, has written 43 books, the latest of them being a tribute to inventors, for he considers that invention is Britain's greatest asset, and cited as examples penicillin, rubber tires and the radio tube.

Play Level

Not a few people have wondered why their offspring, though apparently budding geniuses, are never allowed to skip a grade, but must instead plod in a kind of lockstep through the whole 12 grades in exactly 12 years. Surely, they have suggested, rapid promotion of superior students would not only encourage and reward industry but also relieve to some extent the present classroom shortage.

Now, however, these misguided delusions have been exposed for what they are. The credit for this timely public service must go to the principal of one of our local emporia of learning, as reported in that valued journal the Saanich Star.

"The danger of accelerating the bright child," he points out, "is the child's possible inability to blend itself socially with older children." It would, he rightly declares, do the child "great harm to place him beyond his play level."

Now the wise parent, it seems to me, far from quarrelling with these dicta and criteria, will adjust to them without delay. No longer will he urge his brood to waste weary hours on homework or obscure facts and figures. Instead he will see that their youthful energy is applied where it really counts.

The lad, for example, who learns not to stir his coffee with his thumb has clearly qualified himself for higher studies in a way that a mere bookworm could never hope to. He has, after all, "blended socially;" what more could even the most exacting teacher ask? Thus, too, the young hopeful whose parents judiciously lead his leisure up from the swamps of marbles and hopscotch to the sunlit uplands of bebop; the portals of Latin and algebra, hitherto rightly closed in his face, may now swing open. His "play level" has moved up; his educational level may thus safely also be advanced.

Some, admittedly, may claim that this striking educational theory, far from being "a light unto our paths," is really no more than a mixture of notions picked up at summer school from visiting American bigwigs and rehashed for the consumption of the local peasantry. Such a view, though, is surely too far-fetched to be considered.

H-Bomb in Russian Hands Serious Emergency—Howe

OTTAWA (CP) — The hydrogen bomb in the hands of Russia has produced a world emergency more serious than in Korean War days of 1951, Defence Production Minister Howe said Thursday.

He made the assertion in the Commons as Douglas Harkness (PC — Calgary North) argued against a government proposal for an indefinite extension of defence production powers granted four years ago.

Mr. Harkness said that in 1951 there was extreme apprehension of a third world war. He asked whether the present emergency is worse.

"It certainly is," Mr. Howe interjected. ". . . They (The Russians) didn't have any hydrogen bombs in 1951."

Mr. Harkness said it is the first time he had heard that assertion. Prime Minister St. Laurent and External Affairs Minister Pearson had not said that. Mr. Pearson had done his best to give an impression present conditions were considerably better than during the last four years.

The Conservative member said there is no fighting war today and world leaders are making statements expressing hope tension is easing.

The picture was better "from every point of view" except that the Russians had better and faster bombers, a larger atomic stockpile and the hydrogen bomb.

"Isn't that enough?" Mr. Howe interjected. ". . . You wouldn't say that if they dropped the first H-bomb."

If H-bombs were dropped, Mr. Harkness countered, it wouldn't matter one iota whether the minister has these powers . . . That is a complete bogey-man."

The exchange occurred as the Commons went through its third day of debate on a government bill to eliminate the cut-off date of July 31, 1956, on the Defence Production Act under which the procurement program for defence supplies is carried on.

Conservative and Social Credit members have said that while they approve putting the defence production department on a permanent basis they disagree with continuing indefinitely the minister's broad powers under the act.

Wet Feet Crumble Palace

VENICE, Italy (AP)—The canals which make Venice famous also ruin the foundations of its antique palaces.

Take the 17th-century Ca'Angaran, on the Grand canal. Ca'Angaran means the house of the Angarans. This family gave the Republic of Venice money to fill coffers emptied by war in 1655 and was elevated to nobility as a reward.

For years the Angarans have feared their palace would fall down. Centuries of lapping water had eaten into the underpinnings. But the 17th-century facade was irreplacable and the owners feared foundation repairs would harm the front.

The solution: The facade was taken apart, stone by stone. In all 1,700 separate pieces were piled in a small square nearby.

Sturdy new foundations were built. Now workmen are reassembling the palace. Soon Venetians passing by in their gondolas will never know it was rebuilt.

It's an expensive process. Few Venetian aristocrats can afford the cost. Dozens of palaces badly need restoration if they are not to collapse eventually.

Sixth Body Discovered In Wreckage

EDMONTON (CP)—The charred body of a young mechanic was found Wednesday in the wreckage of an Associated Airways Ltd. Lockheed 14, raising the death toll in the test-flight crash to six.

The body of Eldon Johnston, 23, of Edmonton, was discovered by RCMP searchers. He was not reported missing Tuesday when the twin-engine aircraft crashed and burned in a small clearing on the Winterburn Indian reserve, 10 miles west of here.

Associated officials said Johnston, two other mechanics, and a third pilot "went along for the ride" when the plane was taken on the plane's 200-hour check.

Great Lakes Heads Gains In Papers

MONTREAL (CP) — A buoyant pulp and paper section sparked the industrial market to higher ground in active trading on the stock market Thursday. For the second day shares traded in the mining section hit the 1,000,000 mark.

High spots included Great Lakes, up 2¼, Southern Canada Power and Canadian Bronze, each up 2 points. Fractional advances were generously scattered throughout most other sections.

Ford dropped 1¾ and Hudson Bay 1¼.

The utilities marched forward strongly while beverages had higher tendencies. The base metals were shaded.

The majority of mining issues were down. But Hollinger was up 50 cents at $24.75.

McIntyre Soars

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials moved ahead for their sixth successive advance amid heavy trading at the Toronto stock exchange Thursday.

The strong forward surge, led by papers, steels and utilities, lost some of its force towards the close, however. Profit-taking hit many issues, dropping prices back from their best.

Western oils gained narrowly but base metals and golds eased.

Trading continued at a hectic pace with 9,622,000 shares changing hands.

McIntyre held the spotlight among individual issues shooting up $7 to $87 after touching a high of $89. Traders attributed the sharp rise to rumors of an impending battle for control. Cyrus Eaton, well-known financier, was reported to have offered to buy "a big block" of shares at McIntyre's annual meeting a few weeks ago.

Among industrials, Great Lakes Paper climbed 1¾ following announcement of a $20,000,000 expansion program.

Union Gas climbed $2 among the utilities to a high of $50. Canadian Bronze jumped $4 to a high of $31.

Hudson Bay led most base metals lower, dropping ¾.

Triad led most western oils higher and Dome and Bulolo advanced in a weak golds group.

Almost all uranium issues dropped in profit-taking. Rayrock fell 70.

Wall Street Breaks

NEW YORK (AP)—Prices dropped as much as three points in the New York stock market Thursday under persistent profit-taking.

It was the first time in more than a week that the market closed lower.

Despite the general decline, selected issues held to good-sized advances, particularly in the chemical and gold-mining groups. McIntyre - Porcupine, big Canadian gold miner, jumped 6¾ to 87¾.

Civil Servants To Stage Full-Scale Air Raid Test

The code word "applejack" will send about 2,800 employees scurrying to air-raid shelters in a full-scale civil defence exercise at the provincial government buildings at 9.15 a.m., June 15.

The mass "evacuation" to shelters of all civil servants in the James Bay area will be carried out in conjunction with the June 15 International [illegible]

An air-raid siren at the corner of Superior and Douglas will be sounded to signal the "Red Alert." No other sirens in the city will sound, officials say.

A preliminary warning, coded "Lemon Juice," will be given at 8.45 a.m. over the legislative buildings phone exchange and then the "applejack" red alert will come at 9.15 a.m. The "all clear," coded "snowman," will sound at 9.30 a.m.

The exercise will include clearing of a number of casualties who will be treated at first-aid stations throughout the government buildings' shelter areas.

Chief Warden G. S. Oldfield has requested that a city police officer be detailed to assist the buildings' own civil service defence police in controlling Government street traffic during the exercises.

The international test, Mr. Oldfield said, is largely "a paper exercise" but local organizations in Canada and the U.S. will hold practical experiments where possible.

Monkey Lung Saves Life of Tiny Girl

TORONTO (CP) — A 19-months-old Peterborough, Ont., girl Thursday underwent a "very rare" heart operation during which her blood passed through the lung of a dead monkey.

The operation was performed on Lucinda Row by Dr. W. T. Mustard, Toronto heart surgeon.

The monkey's lung was chosen as the temporary artery for the patient's blood because it most closely resembles a human lung.

City Actor Wins Bursary

A young actor is one of two Victoria students at UBC who won awards in a special list announced yesterday by Dean Walter H. Gage, chairman of the university scholarship committee.

Allen E. Farrell was awarded a summer school of theatre bursary and will be returning to the school at UBC for the third time.

Mr. Farrell has appeared with a touring company in "Hamlet" and "Tobacco Road," and has done professional work with the Avon Theatre and York Repertory Company. He and his wife Doris have appeared together in the York Theatre and Intimate Stage groups.

Other award was a Sandoz prize of a special reference atlas to Craig Matheson, one of the leading students in clinical microscopy.

BY JIM TANG

IN ELITE COMPANY: Only, I'm sure, because they needed a fourth for bridge was I permitted to accompany Colonist business editor Harry Young, Jack Roaf and Cmdr. Herb Little on a week-end trip to Upper Campbell Lake. And because three to a boat is cumbersome, I was also allowed to fish.

Harry and Jack decided to fish together, presumably, I suppose because they felt the naval member of our party needed a navigator. That left me in charge of the navy or vice versa.

My fishing partner turned out to be a mean hand with a fly rod. He had distance, accuracy, and stamina and on the surface at least, didn't appear to mind being paired off with a fellow who was using a spinning outfit. Having so often heard that fly fishing isn't really fishing as much as it is a way of life, I'm usuallly apologetic and embarrassed when I hook up my Mitchell reel and invariably declare that I'll be using a fly rod next time out.

Fishing results were interesting, if a bit disappointing. It was not at all difficult to hook a trout but it was almost impossible on this trip to hook one of respectable size. It would be no exaggeration to state that between the four of us we must have hooked close to 300 trout. Of these we kept about 50, returning the rest for another time. Of the "keepers" the two largest probably didn't weigh more than a pound and the average couldn't have been more than eight ounces.

My three partners stayed with fly fishing while I experimented with a variety of spinning and trolling spoons. Those fish were hitting anything, but deadliest of all was a No. 4 golden bronze Tom Mack. Tired of releasing small trout, I tried it because it was larger on the theory that it would be more likely to interest bigger trout. Nothing could have been more incorrect. Those cradle-size trout kept whacking it until they got hooked and I could have filled several gold-fish bowls.

But it was a fine holiday. Accommodations at the Strathcona Lodge were excellent and Gordon and Mrs. Whittaker thoughtful hosts. There was only one untoward incident. A mistake was made in the bridge score and Harry sweated it out for almost 24 hours before he got his 80 cents back.

MORE RESIGNATIONS: Secretary Don Keirs and Vince Reid are reported to have resigned from the Chinook Club. Their action was in protest of the club acceptance of the resignations of Andy Anderson, immediate past president, and executive-member Ray Ritchie.

It's unfortunate differences couldn't have been cleared up amicably, but if the club is to lose some of its older and more active members, but it might be a suggestion to call a general meeting and thresh the matter out thoroughly.

* * *

FINE POINT OF LAW: Lakewood, New Jersey, was the scene of an interesting ruling this week. An Associated Press dispatch reported that two anglers were fined $20 each for literally "faking" more than their limit of trout although neither had a line in the water.

The unusual event occurred when a warden was stocking a stream with hatchery-reared trout and some of the fish jumped out of the tank truck onto the highway. Fishing nearby, the two anglers transferred their efforts from stream to highway but lost count and were arrested with more than their legal limits.

Both were fined, indicating that a limit is a limit, even if you "catch" your fish when they are out of water.

* * *

OUTCLASSED: Andy Anderson, president of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, helped the RCN Anglers' Association get started, and was given an honorary membership which entitled him to take part in RCNAA derbies. It was meant to be a reward.

Andy gave it a whirl Sunday and was just nosed out of a prize. Fishing with 24 ounces of weight and 375 feet of wire line, he thought so little of his chances that he fell asleep. Roused by his partner, he fought his fish to a standstill and thought he had his prize won until Harold Dibnah weighed in an 18-ouncer to beat out Andy by half an ounce for the smallest salmon of the 44 caught.

* * *

BOTTOM COMPARTMENT: Cliff Heglin, after spending quite a bit of time on lake and stream for the past two years, is again scoring regularly in Saanich Inlet . . . he shared a catch of nine with Ted Reynolds this week to prove he hadn't lost the old touch . . . Doug Price of Langford Radio is in need of springless baby-weighing scales. Anyone who can help him out is asked to telephone 8-3515 . . . the popular and effective Tom Mack spoon is now being manufactured for spinners. The three-sixteenth and quarter-ounce sizes correspond to the No. 2 trolling spoon, and the heavier five-sixteenth-ounce size corresponds to the No. 3 trolling spoon . . . don't forget to try the trout pool at the Sportsmen's Show, which will be at Memorial Arena from Tuesday through Saturday. In addition to two $50 cash and several merchandise prizes for marked fish, there is the knowledge that all money will go to a good cause—The Cerebral Palsy Association.

Villain Sneaks into Action

Lou Thesz successfully defended his world heavyweight wrestling championship at Memorial Arena last night when Sky-Hi Lee was disqualified for rough tactics after both main-eventers had won a fall. Disqualification also decided semi-windup bout, a tag-team affair pitting Johnny Demchuk and Thor Hagen, a couple of good sports, against Ivan Kamaroff, a rough type, and veteran Firp Zybsko, a nasty villain. The heroes won it after each side had taken a fall but not before taking a lot of punishment. Here, Zybsko is sneaking into ring to help Kamaroff although his partner appears to be doing well enough with Demchuk in trouble and, apparently, considerable pain. Tony Martindale and Don Kindred fought to a draw in the special event. Close to 1,500 fans took in the bouts.

Two goals in the final two minutes of a 10-minute overtime period gave Victoria Shamrocks a hard-earned 13-12 victory over the speedy New Westminster Salmonbellies last night in a wide-open Inter-City Lacrosse League thriller at the Royal City.

Larry Booth capped a great Shamrock rally with the winning goal at 9.29 after Jackie Northup had tied the count at 12-12 on a great individual play at 8.49. The Salmonbellies, league trailers, appeared to have their third victory of the season all but wrapped up when Cliff Sepka scored on a long, bullet drive at 7.53 of the overtime period.

FIFTH IN ROW

It was Shamrocks' fifth straight victory and came on the heels of a hard-fought 12-6 triumph over Nanaimo's bruising Timbermen Wednesday night at Memorial Arena. And the victory moved the defending champions into a seven-point lead—their largest of the season.

Playing without Pee Wee Bradshaw, who made the trip but did not dress because of an ankle sprain suffered Wednesday night, the Shamrocks had their hands full with the pesky Salmonbellies, who battled the Rocks to an 8-8 tie in the last meeting at New Westminster.

Victoria held a 4-3 lead at half-time but the teams left the floor at half-time with the score tied at 8-8. Salmonbellies pulled into a 10-8 lead in the third frame before the Irish roared back with three straight goals for an 11-10 edge going into the final period.

Harry Cruickshank tied it again after only 29 seconds of the final quarter and there was no further scoring until Sepka rattled in his fourth goal of the game in overtime. Bill Jobb added three goals for the losers and missed a great chance in the final seconds while Al Gill led the winners with three goals.

Harry Preston, the league's top netminder, was in top form for the losers and held his club together with some brilliant saves.

Cleveland Indians' tottering teepee gave way a little more Thursday as the third-place Tribe lost a third straight game to Boston Red Sox 4-2. The American League leading New York Yankees, meanwhile, ended a two-game slump by beating Detroit 7-3.

It was the sixth setback in seven games for the Indians, now 5½ games behind the Yankees.

The New Yorkers, who open a four-game set in Cleveland Friday night, stretched their lead to five games—their best spread of the year—as rain postponed a double-header between the runnerup Chicago White Sox and Baltimore.

Kansas City smacked Washington a second straight time, 4-2, in the other AL game.

Rain and cold weather upset the National League schedule, postponing Cincinnati at Brooklyn and Milwaukee at New York. The second-place Chicago Cubs edged to within 7½ games of the Brooks by defeating Pittsburgh 6-2.

Philadelphia Phils, behind a nifty three-hitter by Robin Roberts, dumped St. Louis into a fifth place tie with Cincinnati by beating the Cards 2-0 in a night game.

ERRORS HELP BOSTON

Three Cleveland errors helped the Red Sox jump past Washington into fifth place. Only one of the Boston runs was earned, coming on doubles by Ted Lepcio and winning pitcher Frank Sullivan in the fourth inning for a 3-0 lead.

Rookie Herb Score took his fourth defeat on the shabby fielding support. He fanned nine before leaving for a pinch hitter in the fifth, running his No. 1 strikeout total to 101.

A pair of oldtimers won for the Yankees. Eddie Robinson smacked his 10th homer, a two-on blast that capped a four-run first by the Yanks, and Jim Konstanty hurled excellently in relief of Whitey Ford for his third victory. Konstanty one-hit the Tigers after coming on in the fifth.

Speaking Briefly

Vancouver Promoter Claims U.S. Threat

Vancouver fight promoter Earle Kalani said yesterday he was threatened three weeks ago by an "eastern United States syndicate," and told to get out of boxing in the Mainland city.

Kalani, who said the syndicate was identified to him as having its headquarters in New York, said he was told over the telephone he would be "looked after" if he didn't heed the warning but added that he hadn't "heard from them since."

Kalani said the syndicate apparently wanted him out of the way so the syndicate could try and get rival promoter Mickey McGuire to front for it. However, Kalani says that McGuire is as "honest as George Washington."

Maureen Connolly, who becomes a bride Saturday, says she is renouncing tennis forever, except as a pastime . . . "I will just be too busy," said Miss Connolly, who won the U.S. women's crown at the age of 16 . . . Britain and India each won a match Thursday in the opening of their third-round European Davis Cup tennis series . . . Roger Becker downed Indian captain Naresh Kumar, but Ramanathan Krishnan surprised with a straight-set victory over Tony Mottram, Britain's No. 1 player . . . Czechoslovakia's Ivan Ulsberger Thursday ran the 5,000 metres in 14.09.08 minutes at Vienna which, according to Radio Prague, was the best 5,000-metre time run this year . . . Yolande Pompey of Trinidad knocked out Ivano Fontana, Italian light-heavyweight champion, in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round match at Birmingham, England, Thursday night.

Trainer M. A. Tenney has named jockey Dave Erb to mount Swaps for suspended national riding champion Willie Shoemaker in Saturday's $100,000 Californian Stakes at Hollywood Park . . . Shoemaker was set down for five days Thursday for causing interference and for a time it was feared that Swaps, winner of the Kentucky Derby, would withdraw from the race Saturday . . . Swaps, incidentally, may get another chance to prove his superiority over Nashua in a "Kentucky Derby re-match" at Chicago late this summer if their owners can agree on a date . . . Nashua will probably line up against eight other three-year-olds in the Belmont Stakes Saturday . . . Seventeen thoroughbreds are scheduled to go to the post Saturday for the 96th running of Canada's classic horse race—the Queen's Plate—with Senator Jim the favorite at 5-to-2.

The plastic helmet required to be worn by all Hollywood baseball club members was credited with probably saving the life of second baseman Curt Roberts when he was hit on the forehead by a pitched ball . . . Roberts escaped serious injury and doctors said that the helmet probably saved his life . . . Johnny and Eddie O'Brien, the Pittsburgh Pirates' infield twins, discarded their Army uniforms Thursday and hastened back to the National League team.

Viduals Score Seventh Win

Marie Cooper of Copleys pitched the third no-hitter of the senior women's softball league season at Central park last night but it wasn't enough as Individuals chalked up a 5-3 victory for their seventh win in eight meetings with Copleys this season.

Bases on balls and errors played a major part in the scoring and helped the Cleaners to all of their runs. Miss Cooper walked three and her mates committed four errors.

Elks tied the count at 5-5 with a run in the fifth inning, but the Kinsmen, who chalked up their ninth victory against one defeat and grabbed a four-and-a-half-game lead over Oak Bay Kiwanis, capitalized on two errors in the final inning to push across the tie-breaking run. McCooey edged Archie Muir of Point Grey at the 19th green yesterday in the semi-finals after scoring an extra-hole victory over Ted Baldwin of Vancouver in the quarter-finals on Wednesday.

A brilliant pitching duel between Ted Minnis of Esquimalt and Jack Gerard was settled in the bottom of the 10th inning last night when Trade-Ats scored the only run of the game to edge the Athletics in a senior "B" man's softball league thriller at Heywood avenue park.

In what was easily the best senior "B" game of the season, Trade-Ats stretched their lead over Mary's Coffee Bar to a game-and-a-half on the strength of Gerard's four hitter and the run in the 10th frame.

Pete Bridge tripled with one out in the first extra inning and Jack Elliott was intentionally walked. A ground smash by Bill Petersen to second base chased in Bridge with the only run.

Gerard worked out of two tough situations. Doug Hawkes singled and went to third on a two-base error in the fifth inning but Gerard struck him out the next two batters and ended the threat by getting the next batter on an infield fly.

In the sixth frame, the losers loaded the bases with none out but Gerard retired the next three men in order.

BY OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) — The welterweight title jinx rides squarely on Tony De Marco's shoulders tonight when he defends his recently acquired championship against Carmen Basilio.

In recent years no less than 10 of the 147-pound rulers have met their crown the first time they defended. This includes such as Jimmy McLarnin, Barney Ross, Honey Melody, Joe Dundee, Red Cochrane, Johnny Bratton and Johnny Saxton.

The odds are 17 to 10 that the same thing will happen to De Marco at Syracuse tonight.

It is a bit difficult to figure why the odds are so long against the little man from Boston. He has won 17 in a row and he proved himself a fine fighter on April 1 when he made fools out of the odds-makers by flattening Saxton to take the title.

In many ways there is a great similarity between the 23-year-old De Marco and the 28-year-old Basilio. Sons of poor Italian parents, each is a rarity in the prize fighting profession. Both Tony and Carmen are quiet, modest, devout and "home folks."

* * *

De Marco, a squatty, black-haired young man with placid brown eyes, came off the tough, teeming streets of Boston's Little Italy. He was carpenter, construction worker and trucker between bouts after starting as an amateur at 15.

His real name is Leonard Liotta and, being too young for the amateurs, filed the birth certificate of a friend named Tony De Marco to get his early start. The real De Marco thus had to assume another name when he entered the ring.

After 14 amateur bouts, of which he lost only one, De Marco turned professional and has won 40 of 45 with one draw and 25 knockouts to his credit. He is a relentless, free-swinging crowder.

Basilio fights much the same way. Rangier and an inch taller than De Marco, he is one of 10 children of immigrant parents who settled on an onion farm near Syracuse. Carmen worked on farms and in a wire factory before serving 33 months in the Marines.

It was while stationed at Pearl Harbor that he began boxing and in late 1948 he turned professional. Disgusted when he "didn't seem to be getting anywhere," he thought several times of quitting. But there was little else to do, so he stuck it out.

* * *

His big chance came in 1953 when he finally was matched with Kid Gavilan, then the welterweight ruler. He blasted Gavilan to the floor in the first round but lost a split decision. Since then he has waited impatiently for another shot.

They bypassed Carmen this year to give De Marco a shot but promised him the winner. So, after beating Pete Mueller on January 21, Carmen took a mere six-day vacation and has been training for this one ever since.

He has boxed more than 200 rounds in preparation, from featherweights to sharpen his speed, to light heavyweights for punch. His overall record is 44 wins in 62 starts, with seven draws and 20 knockouts.

His record possibly isn't as impressive as De Marco's. But you have to give him an edge on the intangible known as "class." And then, too, there's that welterweight jinx.

Wiebe's Circuit Clout Wins, 1-0, for Jackson

Last night's score: Fletchers 1, Arrow Furniture 0.

Next game, tonight: Victoria City vs. Chinese Students, Central park, 6:30 p.m.

Defending champion Cec Fletchers opened up their biggest lead of the season in the senior "A" men's softball league last night by shading second-place Arrow Furniture, 1-0, in a thriller at upper Central park.

The Furnituremen, who got away to a fast start with five straight victories, dropped four points behind Fletchers but have two games in hand.

Righthander Barry Jackson and big Ab Wiebe combined to give Fletchers their eighth victory in 11 starts this season. Jackson picked up his fifth mound victory with a neat three-hitter while Wiebe supplied the run with a homer in the seventh inning.

Wiebe, whose heavy hitting and powerful pitching arm played a big part in Fletchers' triumph in the British Columbia final last season, has been in a bad hitting slump and his home run last night was only his second hit of the season.

Wiebe's other hit also was a home run and came last Sunday.

Jackson hooked up in a brilliant pitching battle with Archie Sluggett with both hurlers showing near-perfect control. Sluggett, who suffered his first defeat against two victories, struck out eight and walked only one while Jackson struck out seven and also gave up one base on balls.

MISSED CHANCE

Arrows missed their best chance in the third inning when Sluggett tripled with only one out. But Jackson tightened up and struck out Dave Price and Whitey Turner to end the threat.

In the consolation flight, Mrs. E. Gillespie received a bye into the final and Mrs. S. E. Norris won from Mrs. W. C. Mearns by default.

Finals in all flights will be played today.

Medal Winner

PORT ALBERNI — Maureen Pretty won medal honors in the qualifying round of the Championship Cup competition at the Port Alberni Golf Club recently.

Miss Pretty also won the Russell Turner challenge pin by defeating Evelyn Stirzaker. She will defend her pin against Viola Willett.

Mrs. Todd To Defend Victoria Golf Crown

Defending champion Mrs. J. H. Todd and last year's runner-up Mrs. H. G. Mearns will both be on hand when Victoria's top women golfers tee off in the qualifying round of the annual city women's championship at Colwood Monday morning.

Although entries have been slow, tourney officials expect most of the city's leading swingers will be competing and hope for additional entries from some of the higher handicap golfers. All flight competition will be based on handicap this year, giving the higher handicap golfers a better chance to get in on the prize winning.

Match play will begin Tuesday and the number of qualifiers will be determined by the number of entrants.

The qualifying round is one of the compulsory medal tests for four city golfers who are seeking berths on B.C.'s representative team. Mrs. Todd, Mrs. Mearns, Dorothy Herbertson and Shirley Naismith are contesting berths on the provincial squad.

Damaged Cars Return For Saturday's Meet

A rash of accidents and mechanical breakdowns during last Saturday night's stock-car meet at Western Speedway has kept owners and mechanics working feverishly on their machines during the week in preparation for Saturday's stock-car program at the Millstream road oval.

Several cars received heavy damage last week in the 25-lap main event in which 11 of the 19 starting stockers were knocked out because of pileups, spin-outs and mechanical trouble. However, most of the machines are expected to be in good running order for Saturday night's full program.

Several newcomers are expected to see action Saturday, building the field to about 30 stockers, and by next month track officials hope to have close to 40 cars competing in the time trials.

Time trials start at 7.30.

Thomson Paces Australian Pair Into International Tourney Lead

WASHINGTON (CP) — A lone Australian conquered par Thursday as 50 golfers floundered through the wind and drizzle in the first round of the $150,000 international golf championships.

British open champion Peter Thomson toured the par-70 course in a sparkling 67 to take a three-[illegible] lead over [illegible] and giving Australia's defending champion a five-stroke margin over the United States in the Canada Cup competition with a combined total of 139 on Kel Nagle's 72.

Chick Harbert's par 70 and Ed Furgol's 73 made up the American total.

Canada's entry of Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon and Stan Leonard of Vancouver was tied with three other teams for 13th place, with Fletcher supplying a 74 and Leonard a 75 for a 149 total.

Tied with Harbert for second place at 70 in the individual scores were Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, Flory Van Donck of Belgium and Celestino Tugot of the Philippines. Tricky cross - winds played havoc with the field.

"This is the day I should have played checkers," was Leonard's rueful comment as the veteran Vancouver pro, who resigned his post at the Marine Drive Club last week to hit the tournament trail, blew himself to a 39 on the front nine, four over par, and lost another stroke to regulation figures on the way home.

Leonard had a birdie three on the sixth hole of the 6,510 - yard Dale Columbia course but was over par on five other holes on his disastrous front nine. He went one over on the 13th, shooting the rest of the incoming nine in even par.

By contrast, Fletcher shot a respectable par 35 for his first nine and was one under par after getting a birdie two on the fourth hole. He lost his advantage with a six on the fifth, went one over with a five on the 10th and then blew three out of four from the 14th on for his 74.

Thomson's 67 was one stroke off the course record. He regretted only two short putts he missed.

In third place in the team standings, tied at 144, were Belgium, Italy and Argentina. Scotland was alone in sixth place at 145, followed by Germany, France and the Philippines at 146. England and Ireland at 147 and Japan at 148. Colombia, New Zealand and Chile were tied with Canada at 149.

Final Rounds Sunday In City Amateur Golf

Laurie Kerr will carry a four-stroke lead into the final 36 holes of the men's Victoria amateur golf championship at Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club Sunday.

Kerr played steady golf over his home Colwood course last Sunday as he recorded rounds of 71 and 72 for the half-way total of 143.

Colwood champion George Andrews is in second place at 147, five strokes in front of Bob Fleming, Dave Fanthorpe, Frank Scroggs and Ted Colgate, who are deadlocked in third place.

Disney's Five Make-Believe Worlds Brand New Approach to Entertainment

(This is the second of a two-part series on Southern California's newest phenomenon—Disneyland, a privately-owned wonderland brought to life.)

BY VERNON SCOTT

DISNEYLAND, Calif. (UP)—Disneyland, a fairyland come true, opens its magic gates July 18 on five separate make-believe worlds which compose a permanent and new type of entertainment on the American scene.

Visitors step from a 100-acre parking lot into a 1900 railroad station overlooking "Main Street, U.S.A.," where Disney's magicians have built a small, turn-of-the-century town which promises to evoke a tear and smile from youngsters in their 60s and 70s. The kids will love it.

HORSE CARS

Complete with opera house, city hall, fire station and hundreds of old-time stores, the town is brought to life by horse-drawn street cars and gas lights, the Golden Horseshoe cafe, the Main Street Cinema and a Floradora show.

Leaving Main Street, visitors move into a central plaza with four roads leading to more wonder worlds: Adventureland, Frontierland, Fantasyland and Tomorrowland.

The gates of Adventureland open on a Tahitian settlement surrounded with tropical flowers, birds and fish. An explorer's boat churns through tropical rivers of Mexico, Central and South America, Africa, Asia and Australia.

Sharp-eyed youngsters can spot wild animals by the dozen. Made of plastic, they move, roar and slither along the banks of the "rivers."

Next is Frontierland, fronted by a massive log stockade and inhabited by leatherstocking frontiersmen and Indians. Frontierland boasts an 1850 western settlement with boardwalk streets, harness shop and general store. There's a Wells Fargo station, and stage coach trip through the painted desert.

CHASED BY INDIANS

On the painted desert trip, coach passengers will be pursued by outlaws and warlike Indians.

Small fry and grownups can drink at "the longest little bar with the tallest glass of pop" with Davy Crockett, and ride a 105-foot paddle wheeler on a cruise around America's rivers.

Fantasyland is next—and it dominates all of Disneyland with a shimmering castle that has towers and parapets 70 feet high. This is where the creatures in Disney's cartoons come to life.

Peter Pan is on hand for a flying trip over Never-Never Land, Snow White is seen asleep in the castle and the seven dwarfs can be found digging away, in their mine. There's a Dumbo the elephant ride, the mad tea party, a carousel and scores of other things to see and do.

Last in line is Tomorrowland, symbolized by a huge space rocket and a city—circa 1986. Here visitors can drive boats and cars of the future. A space terminal has been built for the adventurous to board a passenger rocket for a realistic, scientifically correct round-trip to the moon.

Disney expects 80 per cent of the customers will be adults. But no matter the age of visitors, this "experiment in new entertainment" is certain to bring to life the places most of us knew existed all the time.

Magistrate Acquits City Constable After Careless Driving Hearing

City constable Kenneth R. Wainwright was cleared of a careless driving charge yesterday in Saanich police court.

Magistrate Henry Hall said he dismissed the charge because on the prosecution evidence, he could not say with any assurance that Wainwright was in the wrong.

He noted that independent witnesses gave contrary evidence and that the driver of the car which Wainwright was alleged to have struck was not called as a witness.

The magistrate said in judgment the witnesses could fix the position of Wainwright's car, which was quite difficult, but could not agree on the positions of their own cars.

Defence counsel was James Proudfoot.

The charge against the off-duty constable was laid following a February 27 accident on Douglas north of Dupplin.

In the same court, Thomas Godfrey, Mount Newton cross road, and Robert John Grant, 989 Foul Bay road, were fined $30 each for exceeding a 50-mile-and-hour speed limit.

Dennis E. Riley, 3222 Glasgow, was fined $30 for driving without liability insurance and $5 for parking on a Quadra sidewalk.

A 21-year-old sailor was accused in city court yesterday of having caused a Chinese to fall down a flight of about 20 stairs at the CAC Gardens, Fisgard street.

Owner Lee Chun, 1601 Government said he was helping escort John G. Peil, an RCN rating at Royal Roads, from the establishment March 13 when the sailor grabbed his arm.

Chun said he fell down the stairs, breaking his ankle in three places.

The trial on an assault charge was adjourned until Monday. Magistrate Henry Hall requested clarification of the position by an independent witness.

Chun said he saw a girl slap the sailor's face and Peil attemps to strike her. With Lee Chee, 1315 Gladstone, Chun said he escorted Peil to the door.

Chun told defence counsel James Proudfoot, he had never known anyone to be thrown down the stairs.

Peil said he walked by a booth occupied by three women and two United States sailors when beckoned by one of the girls. One of the Americans grabbed him.

"My arms were grabbed by four or five waiters," Peil said.

He wanted his coat but they insisted he leave. They were pushing and pulling at the door. The one who fell was nearest him and not facing the stairs, Peil claimed.

Floyd R. Dick, HMCS St. Therese, pleaded guilty to criminally negligent driving of his motorcycle on June 8, but disputed police reports as to his speed.

He said his motorcycle would travel only 70 miles an hour, and that he was travelling 80 as police chased him from North Park to Bay on Cook street at 1.55 a.m.

Dick claimed a car that cut in front of him was at fault in the driving charge. He was fined $50 and his licence suspended for three months.

* * *

An early morning crash into a power pole on Hillside near Cedar Hill road yesterday cost Charles R. McMinn, 1022 Summit, $35 for careless driving.

Police arrived at the scene at about 1 a.m. but found only an empty car. McMinn was arrested an hour later, when he told police he saw the pole too late.

He was also fined $10 for being intoxicated at the time of his arrest.

* * *

Edward M. D. Smith 1814 Oak Bay avenue, fined earlier for impaired driving, yesterday was restricted to business driving for one year.

Paul E. Love, 287 Goward was fined $35 for careless driving on May 24. He collided with a car turning onto Burnside.

Public Education Helps Beat Cancer

OTTAWA (CP) — An English gynaecologist said Thursday he believes 40 per cent of patients [illegible] can be saved through early [illegible].

Dr Malcolm Donaldson, consultant gynaecologist at St Bartholomew's Hospital in London, told general committees of the Canadian Cancer Society his guess is based on a great experiment on cancer education in Yorkshire.

[illegible] of cancer education through pamphlets, lectures and [illegible] the number of patients [illegible] with proven cancer of the uterus increased to 20 from 15 per cent of all reported cases for treatment.

The experiment was devised by a cancer physician, Dr Donaldson said, [illegible] people [illegible] were selected [illegible] organs [illegible] and [illegible] said the results [illegible] Surgery [illegible] the uterus [illegible] Of 5,730 women taking cancer lectures 98.1 per cent said the lectures had removed their minds.

Fines Up, Time Cut At Meters

Half-hour, five-cent parking on Broad street and a $2.50 fine for parking meter violations instead of $1 were approved by city council yesterday.

But Ald. Robert MacMillan called the two recommendations of the public works committee "an exceptionally poor attempt to improve parking in the city" and "just the easiest way out."

"I feel the idea of charging more for meters and fines is nothing more nor less than a method, not of bringing business into the city, but of driving business out of the city," Alderman MacMillan said.

I think we should increase parking facilities not penalize.

Other cities he said had developed parking centres in origin, then were businessmen.

MAYOR AGREES

"I very much agree with you," commented Mayor Claude L. Harrison.

Ald. [illegible] however [illegible] the [illegible] and he thought the fine in metered areas should be the same.

Ald. Austin Curtis said the idea of changes was to drive away all-day parkers. Off-street parking space was not filled to capacity, he said, and was available at a nominal sum.

Ald. Brent Murdoch favored a system of progressively increasing fines.

SHOOS SHOPPERS

"I don't think you could do more to drive the shopper out than make the fine $2.50," he said.

Ald. W. F. Pinfold said he thought the merchants should aid to solve the parking problem and should finance parking lots themselves.

Ald. M. H. Mooney, who introduced the idea of a half-hour parking on Broad Street, said large businesses had agreed that the half-hour parking should be instituted.

Council granted authority yesterday for the purchase of 147 new parking meters for $53,700, with 75 per cent of the gross take of the meters being paid to the supplying company until the meters have been paid for.

Star Enjoys Busy 'Rest'

Beaming over with restless energy which belied his 49 years, veteran film star Victor McLaglen was looking for new worlds to conquer after coming to Victoria yesterday for a 24-hour "rest." In no time the huge, Irish-man had donned a Scottish tam, and happily helped a member of the Empress hotel to shed a basic suit of coveralls to surprised visitors.

Fluoridation Backed By City Health Board

Fluoridation of municipal water supplies was recommended by the Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health to Victoria and Esquimalt councils yesterday.

The board's endorsement lacked the approval of only one member, school trustee Richard Reeve, who said he could not vote for or against it because "there was no evidence to prove the long-term effects on the human body of artificial fluoridation."

The board received letters from the Victoria Medical Association and Victoria and District Dental Association approving fluoridation of the water.

Coun. G. K. Sommers of Esquimalt, chairman of the board, also read a list of medical, dental and public health groups in the United States and Canada that had approved fluoridation, including the federal health department, the Canadian Dental Association, the Canadian Medical Association, the Canadian Public Health Association and the American dental and medical associations and public health services.

The board's resolution noted that several [illegible] have [illegible] fluoride [illegible] water [illegible] the [illegible] studies. [illegible] said [illegible] and [illegible] to [illegible] back [illegible].

Mr. Reeve said he would be "quite satisfied to accept" that natural fluoride in water supplies—which he said was calcium fluoride—had a beneficial effect on teeth without harming human beings otherwise, but he said artificial fluoridation was done with sodium fluoride, "which is an entirely different animal."

"We have yet to have shown to us that any community has had fluoridation with sodium fluoride for more than eight years," he said.

Mr. Reeve said he had been told "some years ago" that "now you have Alcan, so next you're going to have fluoridation." The fluoride, he said, was a waste product of aluminum production.

"If this poison is going to benefit the teeth by its accumulated effect on the hardest substance in the system, tooth enamel, what effect is it going to have on the softer substances of the system?" he argued.

Ald. Robert MacMillan [illegible] that sodium fluoride was not a sample of product of aluminum. Fluoride [illegible] companies [illegible] research. Learn [illegible] of the effects of artificial fluoridation on people, had been carried on in the dental survey of Brantford, Ont., which started in 1945.

I am prepared to accept the data gathered to date by the western authorities and that's what we have," said Councillor Sommers.

OUT ON A LIMB

"They are not going out on a limb unless their reasons are scientifically sound."

Ald. Austin Curtis agreed.

"It seems to me," he said, "that most of the organizations that have endorsed fluoridation have a great responsibility to the public. I don't see that they have an ulterior motive in any way. I feel that we have to accept the recommendations of these organizations."

Public health educator Keith MacDonald said the only reason sodium fluoride was used in artificial fluoridation, rather than calcium fluoride, was its far greater solubility. Otherwise, he said, the two substances were very similar.

Councillor Sommers agreed with Mr. Reeve that sodium fluoride in large quantities was poisonous. "Salt so are sad and baking powder in overdoses."

HOLDS COURT

Although perspiration was running down [illegible] of sunny, [illegible] weather, the big Irishman was busy holding court in the Empress hotel yesterday during a brief "rest" which ends with a return to Hollywood [illegible] to-morrow.

To an RCAF pilot, he talked about the days when he prospected for silver in Ontario in 1903; to a visiting United States race track official, he lamented that he had to sell his 1,000 acre ranch in 1950.

"One of the show places of the San Joaquin valley," he sighed. "Why, I had a son of Man O' War."

Trying to list all of his occupations was too much.

"Gad, me boy," ran through actor, fighter, boxer, wrestler, soldier, sailor, builder and farmer, then continued.

Council Overrides Planners

Overriding a protest from the town planning commission city council yesterday granted a zoning by-law amendment to allow a six-storey apartment block to be built at Rupert and Heywood.

The commission wrote to council saying it was "disturbed to learn that the change was to be recommended to council by the public works committee without reference to the commission."

A. K. Smalley, who plans to build the apartment block, told council it was "not true" that the commission had not been consulted. He said it had been considered repeatedly.

He said he had been advised officially by the building inspector in the presence of the [illegible] of the commission [illegible] to build a six-storey [illegible] block.

"I have been delayed for two years [illegible] for the satisfaction of one or two parties in this city," he said.

"If I am not granted a permit, I will proceed with a four-storey block and consider it a dirty deal."

Ald. M. H. Mooney, a member of the commission, sought to have the recommendation referred to the commission, but Aldermen Curtis, Arthur Dowell and J. D. Smith agreed that in [illegible] had been done and [illegible] have the zoning [illegible] prepare the amendment.

From Fiberglas Boats to . . . . . Sharpshooting Indian

Colonist's Sportsmen's Show Has Thrills for All

BY PETER BRUTON

Thrills aplenty await the thousands of city residents expected to attend the biggest sportsmen's show ever staged in Victoria when it opens for a five-day run in the arena next Tuesday.

Sponsored by The Daily Colonist, the show offers everything from the latest in fiberglas boats to a shooting exhibition that even outclasses the prowess of fabulous Annie Oakley.

A different sport or outdoors activity will be featured each evening. On Tuesday it's fishing, Wednesday, lacrosse, Thursday, Canadian football, Friday, yachting and boating, and Saturday afternoon, Boy Scouts with hunting in the evening.

Fishermen who want to do more than just look will be able to try their luck in a big tank stocked with 600 fighting trout. You can win a $50 prize, too.

Rods will be supplied and the lucky fishermen will have their fish packaged and deep frozen ready to take home.

But in case someone gets the idea he or she is the world's best fisherman a girl trained Patsy Jean Hubbard will be on hand for the stage show. And Patsy can operate four fly-casting rods at the same time or flick a pipe out of a man's mouth with one deft flick of the wrist.

Perhaps the chief attraction will be the sharp shooting display staged by Chief Split Cloud, a 72-year-old Iroquois Indian from New York.

In Vancouver earlier this week Chief Split Cloud was shot through the right hand by his son, Yellow Hawk.

Although his right hand is now in a cast, the chief will continue to demonstrate his prowess here, shooting left-handed.

Favorite of the audiences is Split Cloud's "suicide act." A block of wood and a wafer are placed next to the chief's chest. Then, from a distance of one foot, his assistant fires a six-shooter directly at the block.

A nice neat hole is left in the block, but Split Cloud ends up with only a bruise.

Also on the bill, will be one of the finest hunting dog acts in North America, featuring trainer Bob O'Loughlin of Minneapolis.

O'Loughlin's dog act won't be any vaude-ville turn so far as the dedicated wild fowlers are concerned. Each evening he will send his dogs through both dry land and water retrieving routines.

Star of his "props" is Joey, a tame pheasant which is placed in a corn stack and "pointed" by Ike, an English Pointer.

Added attractions will be the performances by Tommy Cheeta and Bongo, three Hollywood trained chimpanzees. They have just completed a movie in Hollywood. Then there's Peppy, a five-year-old Dalmatian dog said to be a whiz at log rolling, trained seals, and a canoe tilting contest.

A children's animal land with baby bears, deer and bunnies will be displayed in toy houses as an attraction for the younger set, while an educational birdland displaying live mallards, pintails, Canada geese, swans and other game birds will be featured in a water fowl garden.

The exhibition will open each evening at 6 p.m. with the stage and water show acts getting underway at 8.15 p.m. There will be a matinee on Saturday commencing with the arena opening at 1 p.m. and the show starting at 3.15.

FOE Auxiliaries Convene Here

The fifth annual convention of the provincial ladies' auxiliaries of the Fraternal Order of Eagles opened two-day sessions in K of P hall last evening. Above left to right, are Mrs. A. Smith, president of Victoria ladies' auxiliary No. 12, who is in charge of convention arrangements; Mrs. Carol Bennett, grand madam president of Long Beach, Calif., who is the grand representative, and Mrs. Julie Kelly, Vancouver, provincial president.

The president, Mrs. A. Hall highlighted the year's activities in her annual report. Father Andrew Kaber, New Westminster, Philosophy by Rev. TV Talk

BY ROY PARRETT

Victoria television viewers who have been complaining about inferior reception on channels 4 and 5 lately, will be interested in the TV picture in Red Deer, Alta.

Two community antenna systems have been ... in Red Deer, Alberta, a town situated about half way between Calgary and Edmonton.

Big antennas will be erected on high towers in order to pick up Calgary's Channel 2 and Edmonton's Channel 3 outlet.

The signals will then be "boosted" and "piped" to subscribers via a coaxial cable.

Without these elaborate arrangements Red Deer would be wholly without TV, although an application for a TV station is now before the CBC board of governors.

"I hate to tell him—the picture tube burned out hours ago."

SEEING EYE—In Venezuela, television is really dramatic.

Pilot Jack, an English racehorse, ran away before the TV cameras in Caracas just before a race was to begin. He circled the track twice before being brought under control.

Just to stay in the limelight, the horse went on to win the race.

Then, after the shouting was over, Pilot Jack bit his groom and dragged him for several minutes.

Television fans saw the whole action on their screens at home.

The groom is likely to lose his arm. The horse is looking for a sponsor.

Salk Says Vaccine Safe If Properly Made, Used

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Dr. Jonas E. Salk has answered some of the most critical questions in parents' minds about his polio vaccine.

In a press conference at the American Medical Association, these questions were brought up:

Does just one shot give some protection?

Yes, says Salk. It gives a large degree of protection, lasting up to six months or longer.

If a child had had one shot, is paralytic polio more likely or less likely to occur?

Less likely, he says.

Does one shot increase his chances of getting polio?

No. It reduces the chances.

Does the second shot have to be given soon?

No. It apparently can be delayed up to 30 months.

Can the second shot be given during the summer, when polio may be prevalent?

Yes. It is safe then.

SUMMER RISK SLIGHT

Should a child be given his first shot during the summer, when polio may be widespread?

The consensus is that it can be given then, Salk says. There can be a risk, but it is slight on a community-wide basis.

Can a child who has been vaccinated pass polio on to his brothers, sisters or parents?

Yes.

The vaccine cannot prevent polio virus from entering the child's body and infecting him. It's intended to prevent those viruses from hitting at his nerves and causing paralysis. The antibodies in the blood can intercept the viruses before they get to his central nervous system.

But he can pass the virus from his body — even though it doesn't harm the vaccinated child — on to other persons. For a time the vaccinated child can be a "carrier" of polio virus.

But this "carrier" state can happen to anyone. And the important thing, says Salk, is that the vaccinated child is a carrier for less time than the non-vaccinated youngster.

VACCINE SAFE

What, in time, is the ideal thing to do with the polio vaccine?

To vaccinate all children possible. And to vaccinate mothers-to-be, either during or preferably before pregnancy, so that they will pass polio-fighting antibodies on to their babies. These antibodies would persist for a while, with the children getting the polio vaccination later, by about the age of one year.

Is the vaccine safe?

Yes, declares Salk, when it is properly made and administered.

Should a child get his first shot during the summer, the time usually when polio is most prevalent?

This, in amplification of the earlier question, is Salk's answer:

"This is a question for local health officers to decide.

"The situation is this. If a child has viremia, meaning that polio viruses are present in his bloodstream, then it appears that simply the use of a needle can tend to make the virus localize in the area of the injection. It doesn't matter whether the injection is penicillin, polio vaccine, or injection of a salt solution. This is the evidence from experiments on monkeys and other studies.

"This 'provocative' effect comes if virus is already present in the bloodstream.

"Health officers must decide whether more polio would be prevented by giving the vaccine, than the amount of polio which might occur if it were not done."

PROCEDURE ELABORATED

Did something go wrong in the large-scale manufacture of vaccine for use in the United States this year?

"It is understood now generally that certain lots of vaccine used in April, 1955, were associated with the subsequent development of paralytic polio. This demanded very intensive re-examination of the theoretical and practical implications of vaccine preparation, testing, and use."

Indian Minister Invited to U.S.

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Hindustan Times says U.S. Vice-President Nixon has invited Home Minister Chakravarthi Rajagopalachari to visit the United States. Nixon met Rajagopalaghari, one of India's elder statesmen, during a visit to India in 1953. Rajagopalachari has been campaigning against continued hydrogen bomb tests.

Monument to Pioneer Days

Funds Needed To Save Ship

The interior town of Nakusp wants to beach the old Arrow lakes steamer, Minto, and preserve it as a monument of pioneer days.

Lacking the funds to accomplish the job, the town is mailing a province-wide appeal to "old friends and former passengers" of the famous vessel for help.

HISTORICAL MARKER

In a letter to The Daily Colonist, the Nakusp Chamber of Commerce's Minto committee pleaded:

"We are a very small community for so large a project. However, we feel that if the Minto's friends knew of this desire and difficulty they would help us to keep her intact as a museum and historical marker of the duty she performed for settlers and for the restful and beautiful trips so many holiday friends enjoyed aboard her?

"The appeal is urgent because the old vessel has to be beached before the lake level rises.

Ladysmith Renews RCMP Contract

LADYSMITH—City council endorsed renewal of the RCMP contract for a further two-year period ending May 31, 1957, at the new scale of $2,379 per man per year. The city pays for two members of the three-man detachment with headquarters at city hall.

The fire chief has authority under the Fire Marshal's Act to notify a tenant or landowner regarding places he considers a fire trap, council was told.

The fire department quickly gained control of a fire in a car shed which threatened an entire business block last week, but it was explained the situation might be less fortunate where hazards go uncorrected.

NANAIMO—Police stepped their car up to 75 miles an hour in an attempt to catch a car they saw flashing past them on Victoria road. The driver, Alex Walter Richmond, 20, was apprehended in Chase River, and in court, Thursday, was fined $15 and costs.

A 16-year-old youth pleaded guilty to having beer in his possession and was fined $25 and costs. He told the court that a stranger bought the beer for him.

NANAIMO — Five heavy cedar benches valued at $100 each, and similar to those used in B.C. provincial parks, have been presented to the Bowen Park Development Association by the Nanaimo branch of the United Commercial Travellers.

Vic Palmer made the presentation for the UCT and Stan Dyde accepted on behalf of the Bowen Park group.

PORT ALBERNI—A second sawmill in this city will be equipped with multi-clone collectors, according to an announcement by E. G. Shorter, general manager, MacMillan & Bloedel western district operations.

Duplication of the installation at the company's Somass division is planned for Alberni Pacific division to eliminate fly ash nuisance, with work to commence during the shutdown and scheduled for completion in October. Total cost for the two installations will exceed $200,000, it was stated.

In the multi-clone device, flue gases from furnaces are cleaned of solid particles by centrifugal action induced by fans.

Cigaret Causes Blaze

PORT ALBERNI—A cigaret butt tossed by a passerby may have caused a blaze which gutted a shed and caused concern for buildings in the downtown business district here.

Fire Chief William Venables was unable to definitely determine cause of the early Wednesday evening fire in the wooden building at the rear of property at 110 Second avenue south, owned by John Zhurawell. Flames shot high in the air at the site across the alley from Stirzaker's restaurant building.

In Alberni firemen were called to a grass fire presumably lit by children playing in the area. Using a garden hose, Garfield Zinck, 800 Brown road, extinguished the blaze before fire equipment arrived at the scene.

NANAIMO — Growing school population here will bring an increase of 13 teachers to District 68 staff in September, school inspector Claude Campbell told the board. There are 150 teachers now on the staff.

The increase will be in addition to normal turnover.

Rapidly nearing completion is the new junior high school and other schools are being planned.

The board approved terms of a 99-year lease of senior high school property to the Recreation Commission. A district recreation centre will be established on the 10-acre site.

PARKSVILLE — Parksville Kinsmen Club have made a good start on their latest community project, the building of new bathing houses at Parksville beach.

Work bees were organized last week-end by committee chairman H. D. Rolston.

Kinsmen raised nearly $1,200 for the project through a community auction sale.

NANAIMO — Six St. John Ambulance workers here were rewarded with life membership certificates. They are Charles Wharton, lecturer; W. J. Emerson, Hugh Kirkpatrick, S. L. Davies, John Fraser and Dr. J. W. Cooper of Chemainus.

COMOX—Some 20,000 visitors are expected at the "Open House Day" at Comox Airport tomorrow. Many ground shows of radar equipment and photography are being arranged.

The flying show starts at 2.30 p.m. and includes many different types of aircraft.

There are to be three entrances to the airport by three different routes in an effort to avoid traffic jams. Police will direct traffic.

Child Injured by Car

PORT ALBERNI—A young girl, knocked down by a car as she ran across the highway, is in West Coast General Hospital in satisfactory condition.

Wendy Bethel was not seriously injured. The car was driven by Edmund Cayer.

CAMPBELL RIVER—John Babcock of Lantzville, employed by Salmon River Logging Company at Kelsey Bay, is in Lourdes Hospital with an injured knee as a result of a fall when he was jumping from one log to another.

His condition is reported as satisfactory.

* * *

COURTENAY—A bid by the Comox Valley Exhibition Association to secure use of the old army camp on Headquarters road which is under department of national defense has been successful, according to Bill Lamb, secretary.

The board will probably buy part of the land and secure a lease on the rest. The defense department has reserved a part of the land on which there are buildings used by the army. A committee has been named to discuss the site for fair buildings, and other planning, which may also include the proposed ice arena.

PORT ALBERNI — Nine members of Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association of Seattle flew their planes to the airport here last Saturday and spent the week-end at Klitsa Lodge on Sproat Lake.

Letters to Port Alberni and District Chamber of Commerce, and to local newspapers, from president, James M. Walthew commented on courtesies shown to the members by local pilots.

Mr. Walthew expressed gratitude for use of the field and stated that it has an excellent location.

The week-end flight has become an annual event, it was stated.

PORT ALBERNI — Aldermen Fred Weaver and Norman Odgers will represent Port Alberni city council at the annual meeting of Vancouver Island branch URCM. Ald. Weaver is a member of the executive.

PARKSVILLE—A total of $1,500 in prizes will be awarded at the second annual baseball tournament sponsored by Parksville Kinsmen Club on August 5, 6 and 7 at the Community park diamond.

Teams from the lower mainland and the Island will compete for the prize money. Kinsman Mike Malone is committee chairman.

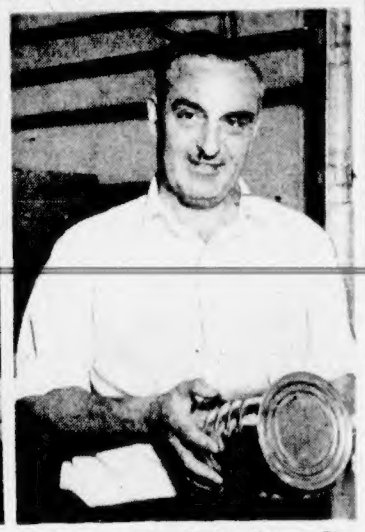
MLA Crewman Arrives in New Princess

Trim, new CPR steamer Princess of Vancouver heralded her own arrival here yesterday with four hearty blasts of her whistle touched off by Capt. G. A. Thomson of Sidney as the 7,000-ton vessel entered Esquimalt harbor. After painting and clean-up work in the government drydock, she will begin trials Monday and enter Nanaimo-Vancouver service Friday.



"Happy wanderer" Dr. Larry Giovando, Nanaimo's Independent MLA, signed on for maiden trans-Atlantic voyage of Princess of Vancouver as stores man. He expressed amazement that canned apples shipped here on the new CPR steamer were not B.C. grown. An experienced traveler, Dr. Giovando was crew member on maiden voyages of Princesses Marguerite and Nanaimo.

Bow Propeller Featured

New Princess Arrives Here After Storm-Tossed Voyage

A bow propeller, which previously has been used only on a German submarine and aircraft carrier, is the most unusual feature of the 7,000-ton CPR steamer Princess of Vancouver, which reached Victoria yesterday. The ferry will enter Nanaimo-Vancouver service next Friday.

The propeller, expected to become common in commercial ships, gives a lateral thrust to aid manoeuvres when docking at special ferry slips, built at Nanaimo and Vancouver, at a cost of $4,000,000.

To be tested shortly, the propeller gives the sideways thrust through a channel across the bow of the 419-foot vessel. It is powered by an electric motor, independent of the ship's turbo-steam machinery, and is controlled from the bridge.

"It will replace a tug in assisting to berth a ship," said Capt. O. J. Williams, head of the B.C. Coast Steamship Service.

BIGGEST ON COAST

Princess of Vancouver is the biggest B.C.C.S. ship on this coast, and is 76 feet longer than Princess of Nanaimo.

The ship can carry 1,500 passengers and 28 boxcars or 150 automobiles. Cars, trucks and boxcars enter through the stern and are secured in a huge section.

Princess of Vancouver is painted black and white like other Princess ships, and has the single stream-lined funnel, first seen on Princess of Nanaimo.

She draws only 12 feet and, as a result, rolled considerably during 70-mile-an-hour gales which struck during the first week of the 35-day, 9,000-mile journey from Glasgow to Victoria via the Panama Canal.

Near the canal, a connecting rod broke when an engine seized up and water entered the engine room as a valve jammed, but Capt. G. A. Thompson of Sidney said the ship "stood up well."

MOSTLY B.C. CREW

Majority of the 42 crewmen are B.C. residents. Alexander Moffat of Victoria is chief engineer, and T. L. Miles of Victoria as chief steward, is responsible for care of passengers in the coffee shop and cocktail bar.

Welcoming party which met the new steamer in Juan de Fuca strait travelled aboard the Island Tug and Barge Company vessel Island Navigator, which was on a "shake-down cruise" after $100,000 worth of repairs.

Tug was beached in Kyuquot Sound January 6, after striking a reef and was almost submerged at high tide. She was refloated 11 days later.

Council Seeks Players' Help

PORT ALBERNI — Tennis club members are to be asked to assist in building new courts at Recreation park.

Failure to receive results in a call for tenders on the work caused concern, as council felt that growth of the club warranted additional court space.

The building inspector as well as tennis players will be asked to contact contractors of the district in an effort to have the courts built this summer.

Parents Doing a Good Job, Says Child-Guidance Expert

PORT ALBERNI — Modern parents are doing a good job in the opinion of Dr. W. L. Valens, director of child guidance clinics on Vancouver Island. He was guest speaker at the Vancouver Island district meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association, held here recently.

He stated that parents are, if anything, a little over-anxious. They should enjoy their children and accept them at their own level of development, he added.

Dr. Valens declared that honest parents are often confused by conflicting advice and are in need of reassurance and encouragement.

AGGRESSIVE BEHAVIOR

[illegible] of behavior is most often brought to attention of the clinic, but it is felt the child with withdrawing tendencies, while escaping notice, is more in need of help.

He spoke in favor of the present program in schools where more attention is paid to the individual. It is realized that children have different levels of development, he explained.

Important emotional needs of children are love, security, acceptance by their peers as useful adequate individuals, and a feeling of accomplishment, he said.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Gladys Skinner. Mrs. C. A. Jamison proposed a vote of thanks.

At Port Alberni

Mainland Group Buys Somass Hotel

PORT ALBERNI — Somass hotel has been sold to a group of mainland men who took over operation of the long-established business at the beginning of the month.

Leslie Smith, formerly with Coca-Cola Bottling Works, Chilliwack, and Ken West, who was manager of the assay office of the Vancouver branch of the Canadian Mint, will live here and manage the hotel.

The third member of the company is Ernie Anderson of Anderson Furniture & Consolidated Typewriter Co., Vancouver.

Victoria's "Good Citizen" will be honored at a ceremony in front of the Legislative Building July 1.

Native Sons of B.C. have set June 24 as closing day for nominations. They must be in writing, stating the qualifications of the person named, who must be a Greater Victoria resident. They should be sent to R. H. Hiscocks, 609 Trutch street.

Unique Building For Sale

COURTENAY — At a recent meeting of the Courtenay Assembly of the Native Sons it was decided to sell or dispose of the Native Sons' Hall to a local organization which would use the building in the interests of the community.

The hall, which was constructed in the early 1920's for community use, is the only one of its kind in Canada. Designed by W. J. Haggerty, it is built of vertically placed logs.

While the building was almost all done by volunteer labor and many donations of material were made, its present value is in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Ontario Tories Gain Landslide Election Win

TORONTO (BUP)—In the most spectacular election victory ever scored in Ontario, Premier Leslie Frost and his Progressive Conservative administration have captured 83 of the 98 seats at stake.

The overwhelming mandate given the premier at the polls out-stripped the smashing victory he scored in 1951 when Progressive Conservatives gained 79 of the 90 seats at stake.

The Liberal party, led by Farquhar Oliver, gained four seats from the Conservatives, but failed to capture any of the eight new constituencies. The results return Oliver as opposition leader with nine men behind him.

Youthful Donald C. MacDonald, who became CCF party leader only 18 months ago, gained a personal victory in his first bid for election, but his followers managed to be elected in only three ridings.

James Dempsey, the controversial Independent Conservative from the Ottawa valley, carried Renfrew South, and Albert Wren, a Liberal-Labor candidate seeking re-election in Kenora, maintained a slight lead when voting there ended for the night with the outcome still much in doubt.

Mr. Frost lost five seats, but swept seven of the eight new constituencies. He gained the Toronto riding of St. Andrew where Allan Grossman defeated Communist Joseph Salsberg.

Nine women sought election to the province's 5th government and all of them were defeated.

Premier Frost, and all but one member of his large cabinet, were returned with comfortable margins. The lone executive-level defeat was suffered by W. E. Hamilton, Minister Without Portfolio, who was unseated in Wellington South by Mayor Harry Worton of Guelph, a liberal.

From his Lindsay home, the Premier described the election results as "a great endorsation" of his party and its platform of "good government" for Ontario.

Cool, Clear, Refreshing

Hottest June Day in Years Has Victorians Sweltering

Busloads of home-bound workers sweltered uncomfortably late yesterday afternoon as temperatures estimated in the low 90s hit the downtown area shortly after 4.30 p.m.

It was Victoria's hottest June day in four years.

Weatherman William Mackie reported that the mercury rose to 88.4 degrees at Gonzales. But the temperature was higher downtown.

Victoria's hottest June day was June 25, 1925—at 95.

BREEZE HELPS

But the cooling effect of sea breezes, predicted for the late afternoon, caused a temperature drop of 13 degrees an hour after the high point was reached.

Today will be considerably cooler, it was forecast, with an expected high of 70 degrees.

At least one city resident collapsed in the heat yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Bertha Godinsele, 80, of 3224 Kingsley, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital after she collapsed in the 1300 block Douglas shortly after 5 p.m.

The low humidity forced a shutdown at noon yesterday of logging operations of Canadian Puget Sound plant at Jordan River.

A company spokesman said if there is no change in the conditions by Monday some 70 loggers may return to work on an early shift.

EARLY SHIFTS

Forest camps in the Nanaimo river, Cowichan and Sooke area went on the early shift—5 a.m. to 1.30 p.m.—on Wednesday.

Beaches were crowded around Victoria. But biggest crowds were at Thetis Lake Park. Hundreds of cars crowded into the area, RCMP reported.

Elk and Beaver lakes had their full quota, too.

Elsewhere in B.C. the weather had everybody hot and bothered except in the farther north.

HOPE HOT

Fraser Valley's village of Hope was hottest spot, with 97 degrees. It was 94 at Kamloops, 81 at Vancouver.

Port Hardy was sultriest Vancouver Island community with 89, which is 11 degrees above its previous June record.

Council Debates Grants

City council yesterday rejected a motion to give the Community Chest $15,000 to allocate to charitable organizations, gave the Victoria Symphony Orchestra nothing, and set aside $3,100 to give the Art Gallery if it can legally do so.

Before it began considering grants, council heard a letter from the Art Gallery saying it had received an offer of a collection of art of considerable value and an endowment of $100,000.

CONDITION

But a condition of the offer was the future security of the gallery from sale for unpaid taxes. The centre asked for a grant as some assurance of security.

As council, in committee of the whole, moved on to consider individual grants, Alderman Macmillan reminded council that last year notice had been given to all charities that in future years they would receive grants only through the Community Chest.

He also noted that the people of Victoria had voted for charitable grants—not other grants—a sum not exceeding $25,000.

"For argument's sake," he said, "the whole $25,000 should go to the Community Chest."

Mayor Claude L. Harrison agreed that this was the truth and might well be digested by aldermen, but Alderman Smith said no could council could bind another.

The mayor said he didn't know what Community Chest meant if it wasn't a chest to put money into for the good of the whole community, "so people will not be discouraged by one appeal after another."

Ald. W. F. Pinfold, however, said the plebiscite on grants had referred only to charitable grants "and we are dealing now with charitable and other grants," and suggested going down the list of appeals in order.

Ald. Austin Curtis said he had believed last year that it was council's duty to make its own allocations.

Alderman Macmillan's motion to give $15,000 to the chest, for it to allocate, was tabled.

First application considered was from the Queen Alexandra Solarium. Ald. M. H. Mooney moved the Solarium be given $500, and Ald. Macmillan suggested $1,000 to be used for construction only, but was ruled out of order by the mayor. The $500 grant was approved.

Ald. Arthur Dowell proposed

Car Dash Fails

Wood Tick Kills Child

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP)—A 350-mile dash by car over country roads failed to save the life of paralyzed, eight-year-old Tommy Ross of Chezacut, B.C., it was learned here Thursday.

The boy was one of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. James Ross. Dr. H. K. Atwood, who treated Tommy here, said he believed the boy died of paralysis contracted from a wood tick picked up in his scalp four or five days before he was brought to hospital here.

He said the parents originally thought Tommy had pneumonia and Wednesday had him taken by a relay of cars to Alexis Creek outpost hospital.

Red Cross nurse Lillian Whiteside examined him and ordered him taken to Williams Lake, where doctors were available.

Dr. Atwood found the tick and removed it, but by that time Tommy was paralyzed.

No respirator was available here so Dr. Atwood ordered him taken by ambulance to Vancouver. Ten minutes outside Spuzzum, near Yale, in the Fraser canyon, the boy died.

Disaster of 1903 Recalled

Villagers Scared By Mountain Steam

FRANK, Alta. (CP) — Strange steam-like clouds rising intermittently from the top of Turtle mountain are causing some concern among residents of this small southwestern Alberta mining community.

Turtle mountain is the same one down which in 1903 an avalanche suddenly thundered, killing at least 66 people in the village at its base.

The clouds have been rising from the mountaintop about every 15 minutes. They started early Wednesday.

Occasional falls of rock from the mountain slope into the jagged valley below have been reported.

So far no one has been injured. RCMP are investigating the phenomenal occurrence but had no immediate comment.

Rock-falls from the barren slope are common spring occurrences as spring waters loosed the shale. But this is the first time that clouds have been seen rising from the mountain top.

The slide on April 29, 1903, which struck the sleeping community at 4 a.m., wiped out its eastern outskirts. Several years later a government edict evacuated the fringe area of the avalanche, and the present townsite of Frank, about half a mile to the west, is not felt to be in any danger.

The population of the once-bustling coal-mining community—in the heart of the Crow's Nest pass—dwindled after the avalanche and now is only a few hundred.

Due to Wildcat Strikes

Parts Shortages Close GM Plants

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors corporation said Thursday it will close 20 plants today because of parts shortages from wildcat union strikes protesting delay in GM contract negotiations here. The closings will affect 60,000 workers.

GM's announcement was made as talks with the United Auto Workers (CIO) continued on a hopeful note that an agreement could be worked out to beat a Sunday midnight strike deadline.

GM was reported preparing to hand UAW president Walter Reuther an offer patterned after Monday's Ford settlement, but both sides maintained a strict silence.

The wildcat strikes erupted earlier this week in a half-dozen GM plants as the UAW extended its contract from Tuesday to Sunday midnight. Strikers were reported confused about the postponement and trigger-happy for a walkout because of slow progress in the Detroit bargaining.

SETTLEMENT FORESEEN

It was indicated, however, that GM's delay in making an offer was primarily due to preparing its position in the light of the Ford agreement, which provides a modified guaranteed wage, plus pay increases, pensions, and other concessions.

GM estimated it will lose production of 20,000 cars and trucks this week.

Thousands Sent Home By Chrysler

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The second major work stoppage in three days at the Chrysler Corporation of Canada Thursday resulted in 2,200 men in the passenger car plant being sent home.

Company officials could give no reason for the stoppage, and union officials were not immediately available for comment.

They said, however, they expected the regular shifts would return to work today.

Dakota Shovels Snow

LEAD, S.D. (AP) — Merchants shovelled an inch of slush from their sidewalks Thursday morning in Lead, and west of the city, on Highway 85, snowplows cleared up to five inches of snow from the highway.

Swedes Bomb Embassy

STOCKHOLM (CP) — A home-made bomb was tossed at the Soviet embassy here Thursday night. Police said they arrested three Swedish boys.

Several windows in the embassy were smashed and an embassy automobile was damaged. No one was injured.

The incident apparently was in protest against the current visit by a parliamentary delegation to the Soviet Union.

By Women in Himalayas

Abominable Snow-Baby Reported

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—A Scottish woman climber said Thursday that during a Himalayan expedition she had seen mysterious tracks that might have been made by an "abominable snow-baby."

The all-woman expedition's Sherpa guide told them the tracks belonged to an infant of the "abominable snowmen"—weird animals said by natives to inhabit the icy slopes of the Himalayan mountains.

Mrs. Monica Jackson, leader of the Scotswomen, said the tracks were four inches long — much smaller than the big footprints spotted by other Himalayan climbers and attributed to "snowmen" by natives.

"We decided because of their size they must belong to a female of the species," Mrs. Jackson chuckled. "But our Sherpa insisted they were left by a yeti and when we said this was impossible because they were too small he said 'Yes, yes, this is an eight-year-old yeti.'"

Yeti is the Sherpa word for the fabled snowmen.

Mrs. Jackson and two other members of the expedition reached New Delhi Thursday after two months of hiking in Nepal, during which they climbed an unnamed 22,000-foot peak in the Jugal Himal range.

Spinster Immigrant Aboard Airborne Ark

AMSTERDAM, Holland (Reuters) — Miss Jacoba Bregman left here Thursday night to start a new life in Nova Scotia, travelling in an airborne ark with her 23 dogs, tractor, and other belongings.

The 47-year-old Dutch spinster took off in a chartered airliner for Sydney, N.S. Her only regret was that her three horses, her Dartmoor pony and her donkey couldn't go along in the plane, too. Canadian health regulations made it necessary to send them by sea.

Newsreel floodlights lit the airport as the sturdily-built emigrant, attired in riding breeches and boots, supervised loading.

The total weight of Miss Bregman's animals and effects is five tons. But KLM Royal Dutch Airlines officials would not reveal the cost of the charter.

Miss Bregman decided to leave her whitewashed cottage and 32 acres at Garderen because she said she wanted "more freedom for myself and my animals."

Her new farm is at Sydney.

Mayor Storms at Suggestion

'Do-Nothing Example,' Says Alderman

Council Indecisive as Macmillan Seeks Auditorium Support

BY R. O. MARRION

Mayor Claude L. Harrison yesterday stormed against the idea of using capital city grant funds for a civic auditorium. But in spite of the mayor's opposition, city council referred the suggestion to its finance committee.

"You'll kill the goose that laid the golden egg," the mayor warned after council had taken this action on a resolution by Ald. Robert Macmillan.

Alderman Macmillan moved that "the city council endorse in principle the stand taken by Premier W. A. C. Bennett that funds from the capital city grant be used for the construction of a civic auditorium, and that the city representatives on the special capital city grant committee be requested to take this proposal under serious consideration."

"An auditorium has already been under consideration for nearly a year," said the mayor.

Ald. M. H. Mooney added that he didn't think it was possible for council to authorize the provincial government to spend the grant funds in any one direction.

There was suddenly a lot of talk about an auditorium, the mayor said "and everyone's jumping to grab the credit."

Credit didn't matter, said Ald. J. D. Smith. The question of "trading the grant for an auditorium" should be discussed. He moved that the resolution be referred to the finance committee.

Alderman Macmillan said he was only suggesting the council approve the idea in principle.

"This council has yet to make any recommendation whatever on the use of the grant," he said. "I think this council should express its desires."

It was all very well for the mayor to talk about the idea of an auditorium rolling along, Alderman Macmillan said. It would roll along for years.

The grant, said the mayor, was given by the government for what it chose to do, and "I think we should leave it alone."

Ald. W. F. Pinfold said he didn't think council should take any immediate action. As far as council was concerned, he said, it had nothing to say about how the grant for beautification should be spent.

The city, he recalled, had been seeking payment of taxes by the government, and this much larger sum, if gained, might be used better for an auditorium at a future time.

"It's a great political football," said the mayor.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, seconder of the resolution and a member of the capital city grant committee, said he thought present beautification plans should be completed, but also thought the auditorium idea should have further study.

Alderman Macmillan said council members had said council had nothing to do with spending the grant funds but wanted to refer the question to committee—"another example of this do-nothing council."

The mayor took exception to this remark and said council had accomplished a great deal, and in a general, unrecorded chorus of ayes, the resolution was referred to finance committee.

Only 15 Seats Lost

Ontario Tories Gain Landslide Election Win

TORONTO (BUP)—In the most spectacular election victory ever scored in Ontario, Premier Leslie Frost and his Progressive Conservative administration have captured 83 of the 98 seats at stake.

The overwhelming mandate given the premier at the polls out-stripped the smashing victory he scored in 1951 when Progressive Conservatives gained 70 of the 90 seats at stake.

The Liberal party, led by Farquhar Oliver, gained four seats from the Conservatives, but failed to capture any of the eight new constituencies. The results return Oliver as opposition leader with nine men behind him.

Youthful Donald C. MacDonald, who became CCF party leader only 18 months ago, gained a personal victory in his first bid for election, but his followers managed to be elected in only three ridings.

James Dempsey, the controversial Independent Conservative from the Ottawa valley, carried Renfrew South, and Albert Wren, a Liberal-Labor candidate seeking re-election in Kenora, maintained a slight lead when voting there ended for the night with the outcome still much in doubt.

Mr. Frost lost five seats, but swept seven of the eight new constituencies. He gained the Toronto riding of St. Andrew where Allan Grossman defeated Communist Joseph Salsberg.

Nine women sought election to the province's 5th government and all of them were defeated.

Premier Frost, and all but one member of his large cabinet, were returned with comfortable margins. The lone executive-level defeat was suffered by W. E. Hamilton, Minister Without Portfolio, who was unseated in Wellington South by Mayor Harry Worton of Guelph, a liberal.

From his Lindsay home, the Premier described the election results as "a great endorsation" of his party and its platform of "good government" for Ontario.

Due to Wildcat Strikes

Parts Shortages Close GM Plants

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors corporation said Thursday it will close 20 plants today because of parts shortages from wildcat union strikes protesting delay in GM contract negotiations here. The closings will affect 60,000 workers.

GM's announcement was made as talks with the United Auto Workers (CIO) continued on a hopeful note that an agreement could be worked out to beat a Sunday midnight strike deadline.

GM was reported preparing to hand UAW president Walter Reuther an offer patterned after Monday's Ford settlement, but both sides maintained a strict silence.

The wildcat strikes erupted earlier this week in a half-dozen GM plants as the UAW extended its contract from Tuesday to Sunday midnight. Strikers were reported confused about the postponement and trigger-happy for a walkout because of slow progress in the Detroit bargaining.

SETTLEMENT FORESEEN

It was indicated, however, that GM's delay in making an offer was primarily due to preparing its position in the light of the Ford agreement, which provides a modified guaranteed wage, plus pay increases, pensions, and other concessions.

GM estimated it will lose production of 20,000 cars and trucks this week.

Thousands Sent Home By Chrysler

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The second major work stoppage in three days at the Chrysler Corporation of Canada Thursday resulted in 2,200 men in the passenger car plant being sent home.

Company officials could give no reason for the stoppage, and union officials were not immediately available for comment.

They said, however, they expected the regular shifts would return to work today.

City Allots $3,100 for Art Gallery

Cool, Clear, Refreshing

Enjoying cooling relief from yesterday's sweltering 88.4 degrees temperature, members of the Victoria Aged Pensioners' Association frollicked in the pool at the Crystal Garden with all the enthusiasm of youngsters. From left are Mr. and Mrs. James Bennett and John Ransom, who at 88 was the oldest member of the group that took to the water.

Official 88.4—Higher Downtown

Hottest June Day in Years Has Victorians Sweltering

Busloads of home-bound workers sweltered uncomfortably late yesterday afternoon as temperatures estimated in the low 90s hit the downtown area shortly after 4.30 p.m.

It was Victoria's hottest June day in four years.

Weatherman William Mackie reported that the mercury rose to 88.4 degrees at Gonzales. But the temperature was higher downtown.

Victoria's hottest June day was June 25, 1925—at 95.

BREEZE HELPS

But the cooling effect of sea breezes, predicted for the late afternoon, caused a temperature drop of 13 degrees an hour after the high point was reached.

Today will be considerably cooler, it was forecast, with an expected high of 70 degrees.

At least one city resident collapsed in the heat yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Bertha Godtseele, 80, of 3224 Kingsley, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital after she collapsed in the 1300 block Douglas shortly after 5 p.m.

The low humidity forced a shutdown at noon yesterday of logging operations of Canadian Puget Sond plant at Jordan River.

A company spokesman said if there is no change in the conditions by Monday some 70 loggers may return to work on an early shift.

EARLY SHIFTS

Forest camps in the Nanaimo river, Cowichan and Sooke area went on the early shift—5 a.m. to 1.30 p.m.—on Wednesday.

Beaches were crowded around Victoria. But biggest crowds were at Thetis Lake Park. Hundreds of cars crowded into the area, RCMP reported.

Elk and Beaver lakes had their full quota, too.

Elsewhere in B.C. the weather had everybody hot and bothered except in the farther north.

HOPE HOT

Fraser Valley's village of Hope was hottest spot, with 97 degrees. It was 94 at Kamloops, 81 at Vancouver.

Port Hardy was sultriest Vancouver Island community with 89, which is 11 degrees above its previous June record.

Dakota Shovels Snow

LEAD, S.D. (AP) — Merchants shovelled an inch of slush from their sidewalks Thursday morning in Lead, and west of the city, on Highway 85, snowplows cleared up to five inches of snow from the highway.

Rain which fell throughout most ern South Dakota and northern Nebraska, turned to snow in the higher portion of the hills.

Swedes Bomb Embassy

STOCKHOLM (CP) — A home-made bomb was tossed at the Soviet embassy here Thursday night. Police said they arrested three Swedish boys.

Several windows in the embassy were smashed and an embassy automobile was damaged. No one was injured.

The incident apparently was in protest against the current visit by a parliamentary delegation to the Soviet Union.

By Women in Himalayas

Abominable Snow-Baby Reported

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—A Scottish woman climber said Thursday that during a Himalayan expedition she had seen mysterious tracks that might have been made by an "abominable snow-baby."

The all-woman expedition's Sherpa guide told them the tracks belonged to an infant of the "abominable snowmen"—weird animals said by natives to inhabit the icy slopes of the Himalayan mountains.

Mrs. Monica Jackson, leader of the Scotswomen, said the tracks were four inches long — much smaller than the big footprints spotted by other Himalayan climbers and attributed to "snowmen" by natives.

"We decided because of their size they must belong to a female of the species," Mrs. Jackson chuckled. "But our Sherpa insisted they were left by a yeti and when we said this was impossible because they were too small he said 'Yes, yes, this is an eight-year-old yeti.'"

Yeti is the Sherpa word for the fabled snowmen.

Mrs. Jackson and two other members of the expedition reached New Delhi Thursday after two months of hiking in Nepal, during which they climbed an unnamed 22,000-foot peak in the Jugal Himal range.

But Refuses Grant To Help Symphony

$22,250 Donated

City council yesterday rejected a motion to give the Community Chest $15,000 to allocate to charitable organizations, gave the Victoria Symphony Orchestra nothing, and set aside $3,100 to give the Art Gallery if it can legally do so.

Before it began considering grants, council heard a letter from the Art Gallery saying it had received an offer of a collection of art of considerable value and an endowment of $100,000.

CONDITION

But a condition of the offer was the future security of the gallery from sale for unpaid taxes. The centre asked for a grant as some assurance of security.

Council endorsed and agreed to send to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities a resolution submitted by Ald. Robert Macmillan, suggesting that because of its educational role, an arts centre should be supported by the provincial government as well as municipalities, preferably on an 80-20 basis.

Ald. J. D. Smith was assured by Alderman Macmillan that this was not an attempt to "pass the buck for another year, or two or three or four years," because this year's grant would be considered later in the meeting.

As council, in committee of the whole, moved on to consider individual grants, Alderman Macmillan reminded council that last year notice had been given to all charities that in future years they would receive grants only through the Community Chest.

He also noted that the people of Victoria had voted for charitable grants—not other grants—a sum not exceeding $25,000.

ALL TO CHEST?

"For argument's sake," he said, "the whole $25,000 should go to the Community Chest."

Mayor Claude L. Harrison agreed that this was the truth and might well be digested by aldermen, but Alderman Smith said no could council could bind another.

The mayor said he didn't know what Community Chest meant if it wasn't a chest to put money into for the good of the whole community, "so people will not be discouraged by one appeal after another."

Ald. W. F. Pinfold, however, said the plebiscite on grants had referred only to charitable grants "and we are dealing now with charitable and other grants," and suggested going down the list of appeals in order.

Ald. Austin Curtis said he had believed last year that it was council's duty to make its own allocations.

Alderman Macmillan's motion to give $15,000 to the chest, for it to allocate, was tabled.

OUT OF ORDER

First application considered was from the Queen Alexandra Solarium. Ald. M. H. Mooney moved the Solarium be given $500, and Ald. Macmillan suggested $1,000 to be used for construction only, but was ruled out of order by the mayor. The $500 grant was approved.

Car Dash Fails

Wood Tick Kills Child

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP)—A 350-mile dash by car over country roads failed to save the life of paralyzed, eight-year-old Tommy Ross of Chezacut, B.C., it was learned here Thursday.

The boy was one of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. James Ross. Dr. H. K. Atwood, who treated Tommy here, said he believed the boy died of paralysis contracted from a wood tick picked up in his scalp four or five days before he was brought to hospital here.

He said the parents originally thought Tommy had pneumonia and Wednesday had him taken by a relay of cars to Alexis Creek outpost hospital.

Red Cross nurse Lillian Whiteside examined him and ordered him taken to Williams Lake, where doctors were available.

Dr. Atwood found the tick and removed it, but by that time Tommy was paralyzed.

No respirator was available here so Dr. Atwood ordered him taken by ambulance to Vancouver. Ten minutes outside Spuzzum, near Yale, in the Fraser canyon, the boy died.

Child Falls Out of Car, Just Bruised

A three-year-old girl suffered bruises and minor abrasions to her legs but was described in good condition in St. Joseph's hospital last night after she fell from a moving car along the Trans-Canada Highway opposite Portage Inlet.

Patricia O'Neil was riding alone in the back seat of a car driven toward Victoria by her father, R. G. O'Neil, 444 Vincent, when she apparently caught the door-handle and fell to the pavement. The accident occurred at 9.05 p.m.

Disaster of 1903 Recalled

Villagers Scared By Mountain Steam

FRANK, Alta. (CP) — Strange steam-like clouds rising intermittently from the top of Turtle mountain are causing some concern among residents of this small southwestern Alberta mining community.

Turtle mountain is the same one down which in 1903 an avalanche suddenly thundered, killing at least 66 people in the village at its base.

1st add mountain 244 . . . base

The clouds have been rising from the mountaintop about every 15 minutes. They started early Wednesday.

Occasional falls of rock from the mountain slope into the jagged valley below have been reported.

So far no one has been injured RCMP are investigating the phenomenal occurrence but had no immediate comment.

Rock-falls from the barren slope are common spring occurrences as spring waters loosen the shale. But this is the first time that clouds have been seen rising from the mountain top.

The slide on April 29, 1903, which struck the sleeping community at 4 a.m., wiped out its eastern outskirts. Several years later a government edict evacuated the fringe area of the avalanche, and the present townsite of Frank, about half a mile to the west, is not felt to be in any danger.

The population of the once-bustling coal-mining community—in the heart of the Crow's Nest pass—dwindled after the avalanche and now is only a few hundred.

Spinster Immigrant Aboard Airborne Ark

AMSTERDAM, Holland (Reuters) — Miss Jacoba Bregman left here Thursday night to start a new life in Nova Scotia, travelling in an airborne ark with her 23 dogs, tractor, and other belongings.

The 47-year-old Dutch spinster took off in a chartered airliner for Sydney, N.S. Her only regret was that her three horses, her Dartmoor pony and her donkey couldn't go along in the plane, too. Canadian health regulations made it necessary to send them by sea.

Newsreel floodlights lit the airport as the sturdily-built emigrant, attired in riding breeches and boots, supervised loading.

The total weight of Miss Bregman's animals and effects is five tons. But KLM Royal Dutch Airlines officials would not reveal the cost of the charter.

Miss Bregman decided to leave her whitewashed cottage and 32 acres at Garderen because she said she wanted "more freedom for myself and my animals."

Her new farm is at Sydney.

Mayor Storms at Suggestion — 'Do-Nothing Example,' Says Alderman

Council Indecisive as Macmillan Seeks Auditorium Support

BY R. O. MARRION

Mayor Claude L. Harrison yesterday stormed against the idea of using capital city grant funds for a civic auditorium. But in spite of the mayor's opposition, city council referred the suggestion to its finance committee.

"You'll kill the goose that laid the golden egg," the mayor warned after council had taken this action on a resolution by Ald. Robert Macmillan.

Alderman Macmillan moved that "the city council endorse in principle the stand taken by Premier W. A. C. Bennett that funds from the capital city grant be used for the construction of a civic auditorium, and that the city representatives on the special capital city grant committee be requested to take this proposal under serious consideration."

"An auditorium has already been under consideration for nearly a year," said the mayor.

Ald. M. H. Mooney added that he didn't think it was possible for council to authorize the provincial government to spend the grant funds in any one direction.

There was suddenly a lot of talk about an auditorium, th mayor said "and everyone's jumping to grab the credit."

Credit didn't matter, said Ald. J. D. Smith. The question of "trading the grant for an auditorium" should be discussed. He moved that the resolution be referred to the finance committee.

Alderman Macmillan said he was only suggesting the council approve the idea in principle.

"This council has yet to make any recommendation whatever on the use of the grant," he said. "I think this council should express its desires."

It was all very well for the mayor to talk about the idea of an auditorium rolling along, Alderman Macmillan said. It would roll along for years.

The grant, said the mayor, was given by the government for what it chose to do, and "I think we should leave it alone."

Ald. W. F. Pinfold said he didn't think council should take any immediate action. As far as council was concerned, he said, it had nothing to say about how the grant for beautification should be spent.

The city, he recalled, had been seeking payment of taxes by the government, and this much larger sum, if gained, might be used better for an auditorium at a future time.

"It's a great political football," said the mayor.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, seconder of the resolution and a member of the capital city grant committee, said he thought present beautification plans should be completed, but also thought the auditorium idea should have further study.

Alderman Macmillan said council members had said council had nothing to do with spending the grant funds but wanted to refer the question to committee—"another example of this do-nothing council."

The mayor took exception to this remark and said council had accomplished a great deal, and in a general, unrecorded chorus of ayes, the resolution was referred to finance committee.
